Dixie, Rimmed By Rains, Gets Small Relief

Arkwright Makes New Appeal for Electricity Conservation.

Atlanta's first "blackout" weekend passed into sombre history last night as a rain belt rimmed the drouth-stricken southeast—giving but little relief to the parched area—and Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, made a new appeal for conservation of electrical power.

Both Saturday and last night, the usually crowded streets of weekend amusement seekers were missing. Few strollers were seen downtown, where store fronts—ordinarily ablaze with lights—were dim in their darkness. Display signs, and whiteway lights, too, were out, adding to the blackness—mute evidence of the co-operation the city and merchants already were giving in the program to save kilowatts so that vital defense industries may be kept going without interruption.

First in Series.
First in a series of Federal Power Commission-initiated conferences with electric utility officials will be held at the Ansley hotel here Wednesday, Chairman Leland Olds announced last night in Washington.

Power facilities for Georgia, the Carolinas, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee and parts of Virginia and Texas will be discussed at the meeting.

In a statewide broadcast over eight Georgia radio stations, Arkwright, terming the drouth the "worst in 37 years," warned of drouth-depleted reservoirs and called on citizens to reduce by one-third the consumption of electricity.

Present Program.
"If our present program of voluntary reduction of service is unsuccessful," Arkwright said the Office of Production Management would have to step in and restrict power consumption.

"The power-producing agencies, both public and private, could have met the drouth problem if the defense program had not existed," he said. "They could have met the defense needs if there had been normal rainfall. They could not meet both without some curtailments."

Partly Cloudy.
Meanwhile, the weather office at Candler airport predicted partly cloudy and continued warm weather in Atlanta for today, adding no rain was in sight, but that if rain did fall it would be widely scattered showers with not enough potency to break the drouth.

Mobile and Raleigh, N. C., were the only southeastern cities to receive more than an inch of rain yesterday. Atlanta measured .01 of an inch, which was hardly enough.

55,000 Men, 12,000 Vehicles 'Hide' in Tennessee War Games

WITH THE ARMY IN TENNESSEE, June 1.—(P)—Unlabeled from weekend holiday traffic, three Army divisions—more than 50,000 men and 12,000 vehicles—hid themselves from "enemy" eyes in the hilly woodlands of central Tennessee tonight, ready for a month-long series of maneuvers to gauge the efficiency of a small part of the nation's new Army.

Every truck, from 10-ton artillery prime movers to a quarter-ton midge that is the jack rabbit of Uncle Sam's Army, was screened from observation airplanes.

So well secluded were they and the thousands of men who slept in pup tents and ate from field kitchens in leafy hideouts that sign posts had to be erected at first to keep soldiers from Michigan, New

Pope Pius XII Defends Rights Of Individuals

VATICAN CITY, June 1.—(P)—Pope Pius XII defended the right and duties of the individual and families against too extensive state interference in a radio broadcast today commemorating the 50th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's social encyclical "Rerum Novarum."

The pontiff, speaking in Italian over the Vatican radio, upheld man's right to freedom in his "physical, spiritual, religious and moral movements."

He warned against the "error" of the belief that "the scope of man on earth is society."

"Society is not an end in itself," the Holy Father asserted.

The right and duty to work is considered imposed upon man in the first instance by nature, he said, "not by society as if man were nothing more than a mere slave or official of the community."

It follows, he added, that "the duty and right to organize labor belongs above all to the people immediately interested; employers and workers."

Only when they fail to fulfill their functions should the state intervene, he declared.

The Pope defended the church's right to say whether any given social system harmonized with the "unchangeable order of God" and

Holiday Death Figures Reach Total of 400

Motor Vehicle Accidents Account for Most of U. S. Casualties.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
As the end of the three-day Memorial holiday weekend neared, deaths by violence reported yesterday throughout the nation totaled 400. Traffic accidents accounted for two-thirds of them.

Motor vehicle mishaps took 270 lives, trains killed 13, there were 61 drownings and 56 fatalities due to miscellaneous causes.

Highways were choked last night with motorists returning from holiday trips, and police and state patrols increased their vigilance.

Partly cloudy and continued warm is the weather prospect today for Atlanta, according to the forecast issued yesterday at the municipal airport weather office.

Temperature extremes due are 73 and 88 degrees, approximating yesterday's 72 and 88 degrees. No rain is in sight, and it was added, if rain comes, it will be merely widely scattered showers.

Three Blazes Rage in Norfolk Near Navy Site

Fire Chief Declares Fires Are of Incendiary Origin.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
NORFOLK, Va., June 1.—Three fires, declared by Fire Chief E. J. Cannon to have been of incendiary origin, kept all available city fire apparatus busy for two hours tonight and caused requests to be sent to the Norfolk Navy Yard and naval operating base for assistance.

Damage of approximately $75,000 was caused at the M. T. Blasingham Lumber Company, it was estimated by Vice President A. B. Lacey. The plant is filling orders in connection with defense projects.

Oil Firm Fire.
A fire occurring shortly afterward at the Hurst Oil Company, wholesalers, destroyed 1,000 gallons of oil, a truck and other equipment before being brought under control. Damage was estimated at about $15,000.

Lesser damage was caused at the plant of the Dr. Pepper Bottling Works in the first of three blazes, which was discovered at 7:14 p. m.

Near Each Other.
The oil plant and the lumber company are located within a few blocks of each other, and are about five miles from the naval operating base.

The fires occurred in the midst of an "alert" call to Norfolk units of the Virginia Protective Force who had been advised that they might be called during the weekend to guard power stations, pumping stations, gas stations and other places in the event of an emergency.

WATERFRONT FIRE LOSS 25 MILLION
JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 1.—(P)—Fire Chief Frank Ertle estimated today that a roaring night-long waterfront blaze that leveled an eight-story grain elevator and an adjacent pier and swept the Jersey City Stockyards caused damages "well over $25,000,000."

Ertle described the fire as "the worst in Jersey City's history." It moved northward out of a stockyard hayloft at 5:02 o'clock yesterday afternoon to damage a seven-story warehouse and its contents, lick at the Erie railway terminal, and leave four waterfront blocks in ruins.

Firemen Injured.
At least 400 head of hogs and cattle perished in the blazing inferno, brought under control at 9:20 o'clock last night.

No fatalities have been reported, although several firemen were treated for smoke inhalation and minor cuts and bruises.

The last of the flames, which continued through the night, were extinguished in the steel and concrete warehouse this afternoon. At 3:45 o'clock Deputy Chief Richard Cullen said all blazes were "practically out."

The city's weary and begrimed firemen had scarcely laid sufficient hose to continue soaking the smoking waterfront area when a second fire broke out shortly afterward and gutted five downtown buildings on Newark avenue and Henderson street. The structures were small frame dwellings and business units.

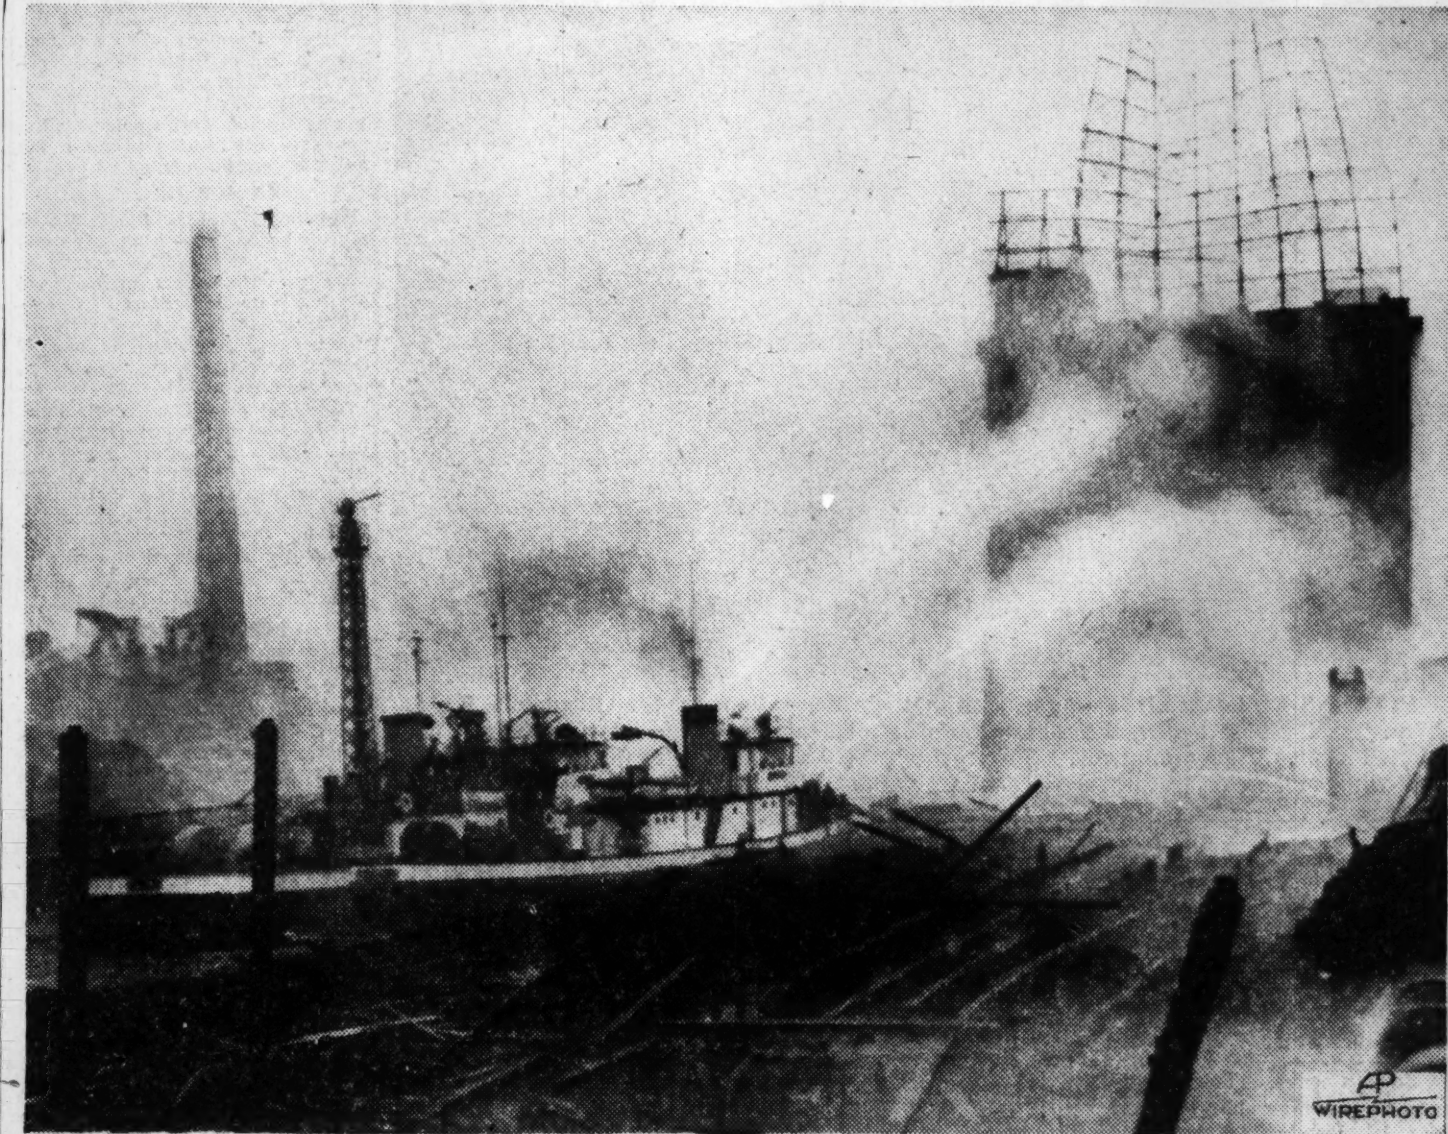

Seven pumpers and their crews subdued the blaze in which one

Jenny Dolly, Farm Boy, 13, Slays Stepfather With Shotgun, Cleared by Jury

T. J. Bennett, of Flowery Branch, Admonished by Coroner To 'Be Good Boy and Forget It'

Rex Roberts Is Victim.

By LEE FUHRMAN, Staff Writer.
GAINESVILLE, Ga., June 1.—A 13-year-old Hall county farm boy shot and killed his stepfather with a withering blast from a long-barreled shotgun near here today in a dramatic climax to a family "fuss" that began when the man slapped the lad in the face with a wet towel.

A few hours after the fatal shooting, a coroner's jury decided that the boy—Leonard Thomas Jefferson Bennett, more intimately known as "T. J."—shot in self-defense. He was acquitted and sent home with the admonition to "be a good boy and forget it."

Scene of Shooting.
The scene of the shooting was in the rear of a farm house deep in a pine grove a mile south of Flowery Branch and a half mile from the busy Atlanta highway.

The victim was Rex Roberts, 45, employed on the large farm of Paul Wayne. The shotgun blast struck Roberts in the chest, neck and lower face.

The shooting was the second in Georgia in recent months in which a boy killed a parent.

A few weeks ago, Robert Messer, 12-year-old, Burke county boy, was sentenced to life for the murder of his father and is now in the State Training School for Boys at Milledgeville, awaiting a decision of the State Prison Commission as to whether or not he may accept a proffered home in Nebraska's famous "Boys Town."

Wants To Be Pilot.
"T. J."—a fair-haired, blue-eyed lad who one day hopes to become an airplane pilot because he "wants to travel"—was taken to the Hall county jail here by Sheriff A. W. Bell shortly after the shooting. The boy told his story frankly and unhesitatingly, repeating it in the same candid manner to the coroner's jury.

The lad disclosed that he came into the house this morning as his stepfather was washing his hands in a basin.

"He had been drinking," the boy told the jury and the sheriff. "He was good to me when he was not drinking, but mean when he was drinking. He picked up a wet

Nazi Command Of Air Is Seen Ended at Crete

Strong Bases Used There Not Available, RAF Official Says.

By EDWARD KENNEDY.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 1.—(P)—A high RAF spokesman said today that Germany's air supremacy which swept the Nazi forces through the Balkans and into Crete ended at that Mediterranean island because of the air base factor. He estimated the Nazi air force thrown at Crete at 1,000 planes.

If the Germans carry the Luftwaffe to the mainland of Africa or Asia Minor, he said, the situation will be largely reversed and even should they attempt air invasion of Cyprus they will not have the same vantage positions of bases as in the attack on Crete.

"The essence of air operations, as in naval operations, is secure bases," he continued. "German bases and the range they had explain why we could not put an air cover over Crete. As the Germans advanced they spread out obtaining a semi-circle of bases around Crete and within a short distance of it. We were pushed back to a corner of the triangle."

Despite the Germans' extensive use of parachute troops and dive bombers in Crete, this official asserted, far more important factors were the landing of troops by plane and machinegunning from low altitudes by fighter planes.

The spokesman said American planes now arriving in larger numbers are proving "very nice aircraft but like all good babies are having their teething troubles."

British airmen have had some trouble with them mainly because they didn't mount enough guns, but this has been remedied now, he explained.

More Than Half Of Men Saved, English Assert

Nazi Losses Reported Enormous in 12-Day Raging Fight.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
LONDON, June 1.—Britain has abandoned Crete to the Germans and their Italian helpers, ending 12 days of the war's most frightful slaughter.

The war office formally acknowledged today the Axis conquest of the vital Mediterranean island but said 15,000 Allied troops had been rescued and withdrawn to Egypt to fight another day. Apparently the withdrawal was made yesterday.

More Than Half Saved.
A British spokesman in Cairo said forces removed from Crete represented a saving of more than half the troops which defended the island.

A 90-word statement attributing the loss of Crete to Germany's air superiority and proximity of bases frankly admitted severe British losses and called those of the Germans and Italians "enormous."

"It became clear that our naval and military forces could not be expected to operate indefinitely in and near Crete without more air support than could be provided from our air bases in Africa," said this brief epitaph to an epic battle.

Thus Adolf Hitler, whose airborne invaders started swarming down on Crete with the dawn of May 20, won history's first major test between air and sea power.

Blow Softened.
It struck home, too, to the people of this seagirt island fortress a warning of what may be in store for them.

This gigantic stride by the Axis in the swiftly unfolding battle for Suez was recognized on all sides here as a terrific blow.

But the public apparently accepted it with no apparent desire for recrimination at home and with less gloom than in other big retreats by sea—from Dunkerque and from the Greek mainland.

Gradually darkening communiques softened the blow somewhat and the press reflected no sign of despair.

Naval Base Lost.

Just what was the price Britain paid in manpower may not be known until historians write the story of this war. In seapower, the British have acknowledged the loss of three cruisers and four destroyers and the damaging of two battleships and several more destroyers by Hitler's and Mussolini's airmen.

The Germans announced today approximately 10,000 British imperial and Greek prisoners already have been taken on Crete, with the mopping up continuing. The Germans also have claimed the sinking of 11 cruisers, eight destroyers, one submarine and five torpedo boats out of the British Mediterranean fleet.

Britain lost also one of her five Mediterranean naval bases—the others are Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus and Alexandria—and a vital jumping off place for Axis

Labor Council Backs 4-Year Term Proposal

Also Approves Planned Defense Mediation Board Here.

The Georgia State Industrial Union Council, CIO body, held its convention in Atlanta yesterday with the following developments:

1. Indorsement of a four-year term for Georgia's Governor, without right of succession until after at least one full term has passed since expiration of first term.
2. Approval of the proposed Atlanta Defense Mediation Board to smooth out difficulties between capital and labor during the national emergency.

Supports Councils.

3. Support of the Industry Councils proposed by Philip Murray, president Congress of Industrial Organizations, for study of all United States industries engaged in national defense production to ascertain the fullest use and, if necessary, expansion of those facilities.
4. Re-election of C. H. Gillman as president.

Addresses were made before the convention by David McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, and by Walter Smethurst, assistant director of organization for the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Mediation Board.

To the Atlanta Defense Mediation Board, the council recommended appointment of "an impartial chairman known to be a man of much intelligence, integrity and fairness." Resolutions favor restriction of the board's scope to mediation between parties whose cases come before it voluntarily and to make public its recommendations, without mandatory power.

In addition to functioning as efficiency stimulus in national defense, the Industry Councils will plan now to meet the emergency "inevitably following the ending of a war and prevent the economic depression, unemployment and destitution which will otherwise overtake our country," the convention was told.

Other officers elected were John Holt, vice president; Bernard Bohra, secretary; and Miss Ola Warren, treasurer. Chosen executive committee members were Walter Morris, Miss Vertie Pittard, J. L. Welch, N. C. Perdue, Dewey May and William Frazier.

PATTERNS FOR DEFENSE—As precise in their formation as the Randolph Field, Tex., training base below, these basic training planes act as "aerial classrooms" for United States Army students. Powered with 450-horsepower engines, 350 of these low-wing monoplanes are in service as trainers at Randolph Field.

laid down a series of moral principles to govern use of material goods, labor and family.

He defended private property as the basis of the family, giving the father "the healthy liberty he needs to fulfill his duties as the head of a family."

The pontiff called upon the faithful not to be upset by "the growing paganism of public life" nor to "be misled by the manufacturers of errors and unhealthy theories."

Shortly before the broadcast the Pope received congratulations from the College of Cardinals on the occasion of his saint day, which comes tomorrow.

To them he also spoke sorrowfully of the war. Although Vatican City has been spared "war's horrors" thus far, he told the cardinals, he feels daily and hourly the sufferings of mankind.

The horizon is dark he said, with the possibility of darker times to come but "the sun of justice will not cease to shine."

3 Killed and 5 Injured In North Carolina Crash

CLINTON, N. C., June 1.—(AP) Harold Harris, 21, and his two sisters, Martha Harris, 19, and Betty Harris, 17, of Winter Park, near Wilmington, were killed and five persons were injured, two seriously, today in a head-on automobile collision 1 1/2 miles north of here on the Dunn Highway.

The injured were H. M. Edison, Jr., of Saluda, S. C.; Jerome Godwin, of Dunn; Miss Larie Raynor, of Dunn; Miss Gloria Byrd, of Lillington, and D. T. Stevenson, of near Dunn. They were carried to a Fayetteville hospital, where attendants said the conditions of Edison and Miss Byrd were critical.

Anti-Nazi Said Behind Hess Flight

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—The British radio, in a German language broadcast heard here by CBS, said tonight that "some of the old fighters" of the early days of the Nazi movement are now suspected of having aided Rudolf Hess to fly to England.

The most prominent "old fighter" mentioned was Kurt Schmalz, a member of Hess' personal staff, former leader of the German youth movement and former vice gauleiter of the province of South Hanover-Brunswick. The radio said he last was seen in public early in May.

Last winter when Education Minister Bernard Rust resigned his post as gauleiter of South Hanover-Brunswick and Viktor Lutz, chief of staff of the Brown Shirts, resigned as commander-in-chief of Hannover, it was thought Schmalz, Hess' favorite, would get the vacant posts, the radio announced.

Instead the leader of the Hitler Youth, Hartmann Lauterbacher, was nominated, the narrator said, "as the result of intrigues by a group inside the party" led by Minister of the Interior Frick.

to benefit drying crops. Mobile recorded a fall of 1.28 and Raleigh had 1.46.

Light showers fell in a few other southern sections, including Richmond, Norfolk, Greenwood, S. C., and New Orleans.

Rain Belt.

The rain belt extended from the Pacific to the Atlantic, along the Canadian border and down the Mississippi Valley into northern Texas.

As result of the rain deficiency, Arkwright declared "the company's whole system of storage reservoirs throughout the state is about one-third full."

He said the situation in Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and the Carolinas was comparable.

Direct Result.

"The direct and indirect result of the armament program has been to impose huge additional demands on electric power facilities," Arkwright asserted. "The use of power is running about 25 per cent above a year ago for the entire southeastern area and the demand is constantly increasing, partly because of the enormously expanded aluminum production. This demand will continue to increase."

The 33 per cent reduction in power consumption by users would effect a 20 per cent "over-all reduction," he said.

He suggested such things as turning off lights, fans, radios, electric irons, etc., when not in actual use as means of saving energy.

He said if each Georgia home could save one kilowatt hour a day it would effect a saving of 200,000 kilowatt hours a day, "and that's worth working for."

Young Harris Will Graduate Seniors Today

55th Commencement Closes; Building Program Is Planned.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Young Harris College closes its 55th commencement today, with a class of graduates numbering 110, and with an enrollment for the year of 418, according to information submitted to the board of trustees by President T. J. Lance. Summer school, which is to be discontinued after this year, will start this week.

Immediate activities to be promoted by the college authorities will include erection of the Pruitt Memorial hall, completion of the Sharp Memorial church, construction of a gymnasium, swimming pool and athletic court, and promotion of a campaign to bring the college endowment up to $200,000. Bona Allen, of Buford; ex-Governor E. D. Rivers, of Lakeland, and Professor J. Worth Sharp, of Young Harris, were named by the board of trustees to promote the athletic improvements.

Assets Sufficient.

Business Manager Ralph Moore reported total operating expenditures for the year in excess of $80,000, with assets in hand to liquidate all obligations. To comply with governmental stipulations, the trustees authorized a loan of $5,000 to secure a coal supply in advance for next term.

Chief Justice Charles S. Reid, secretary of the board of trustees, was given the award of honor this year, in recognition of outstanding service rendered to the institution. Cecil Cannon, of Atlanta, president of the Henry Grady Hotel Company, announced the gift of total furnishings from 25 rooms of the Henry Grady hotel.

Faculty Named.

Faculty members announced for the 1941-42 college year are: T. J. Lance, president; F. M. Hunter, W. S. Mann, Miss Verdie Miller, J. W. Sharp, J. C. Camp, S. B. Talar, Leslie Jones, the Rev. J. W. Child, Miss Laura Bell, de Shields, Hubert L. Butt, E. L. Adams, Miss Milda McCurdy, Miss Austell Colwell, Miss Etta Chapman, Miss Mabel White, Mrs. M. C. Myers, L. C. Atkins, Ralph Moore, Mrs. Gertie Hallman, Mrs. J. A. Sharp, J. W. Miles and Mrs. S. B. Tolar.

Clay Medal-Won By M. Dunaway.

YOUNG HARRIS, Ga., June 1.—The Clay medal, offered annually by H. G. Clay, of Atlanta, to the best public speaker at Young Harris College, was won last week by M. Dunaway, of Columbus, Ga. Dunaway, of Hillsdale, Ga., placed second in the competition. 15,000 Troops Saved; British Give Up Crete assaults on Suez, less than 500 miles away.

In retrospect, it appeared that the battle for the 160-mile long Greek island was decided on the third day of the Nazi invasion, when the RAF announced withdrawal of its fighter planes. The Luftwaffe held bases on the Greek mainland less than 100 miles away.

British long-range fighters did what they could from western desert bases in Africa—200 to 400 miles away—but their comparatively small numbers were no match for the swarming Luftwaffe.

Ferocity Heightened.

Day by day the ferocity of the German air assault grew, surpassing anything ever before seen in aerial warfare. In Cairo an RAF spokesman estimated the Germans used 1,000 planes.

Greek Premier Emmanouel Tsouderos, who went to Egypt, reported "not a stone was left standing" in Candia, Crete's capital city. Candia, its largest city, with a population of 33,000, and Retimo.

The Germans, he said, covered them "with mathematical precision laterally and diagonally." From Malemi airport, 10 miles from Candia and the first foothold obtained by the Nazi paratroopers and glider troops, the invaders spread from this western end of the island.

First Ships Halted.

Virtually unchallenged by the air after the RAF withdrawal, the German fleet heavily to the allied ground defenders, but still they kept coming, streaming in from Greece with timetable regularity.

The royal navy rolled back the first German troop convoy of 30 ships, and no further large-scale attempt at a sea-borne landing was reported.

It was stated that nothing more than an "odd caïque or so" got through. A caïque is a Greek fishing boat.

Has Communications.

Although the Nazis used against Crete a whole circus of methods with which they have threatened Britain herself, one big difference is apparent.

Britain has thousands of fighters, ready to work from second line bases if those of the front line are knocked out.

In the Cretan invasion Adolf Hitler uncovered the first foothold which Britain has learned valuable lessons.

For the first time under combat conditions gliders were towed, troop-laden, into the battle zone, many of them making crash land-

SHOT IN SELF-DEFENSE—Leonard Thomas Jefferson Bennett, better known as "T. J.," of Flowery Branch, was acquitted yesterday by a Hall county coroner's jury of fatally shooting his stepfather, Rex Roberts, 45, farmer. ville, a purchase which angered Roberts and caused him to tell Holman: "Why don't you buy your folks something to eat, 'stead of that car?"

This created a tension which remained since Saturday, the sheriff said he learned.

Ignorant of Other Case.

Asked if he had been influenced in pulling the trigger by reading of the Messex case, "T. J." looked puzzled and said: "Who? No, I never heard of him. Who is he? What did he do?"

"T. J." disclosed that the blast which killed Roberts marked the second time in his life that he had ever fired a weapon.

"About three years ago, I was carrying a shotgun on my shoulder," he said, "and it struck the ground and went off. I still got some marks near my nose where the shot hit me. I was lucky it didn't kill me."

To Attend Funeral.

Funeral services for Roberts will be held Monday at Big Creek Baptist church, where "T. J." said he "sometimes goes to Sunday school." He said he was going to the funeral, and, asked how he felt about this, he replied, "I don't know."

"T. J." is an eighth grade student in the Flowery Branch public school. He said he was going to "try to do what the men told me to do, be a good boy and forget this."

E. C. Newsom, 89, Dead in Eatonton

EATONTON, Ga., June 1.—Funeral services for E. C. Newsom, 89, retired Eatonton business man and one of the city's oldest residents, who died Saturday after a lengthy illness, will be held at Harmony Baptist Church near here, tomorrow morning, the Rev. Lon Knight officiating.

Mr. Newsom served many years as justice of the peace, bailiff and tax assessor. He is survived by his wife; five sons, E. C. Newsom, Jr., Eatonton; Charles H. Newsom, Montgomery, Ala.; John W. Newsom, Gary, Ind.; I. D. Newsom, Reidsville; Bruce Newsom, Columbus, and Marion Newsom, Madison; four daughters, Mrs. M. L. Gray, Athens; Mrs. R. L. Pentecostal Conference Scheduled Thursday

FRANKLIN SPRINGS, Ga., June 1.—(AP)—Delegates from this and other countries will meet Thursday for the ninth quadrennial general conference of the Pentecostal Holiness church. ings to speed the ground organization of their passengers. Parachutists showed up with new wrinkles—such as having their hands, faces and uniforms smeared green to blend with foliage. Parachutes were varicolored to guide the ground organization of the parachutists.

There also were reports that tanks were flown in by giant air carriers.

Another trick familiar in modern land warfare also was brought into play—chemical fog for concealment of the Germans and the blinded confusion of the allies. The fog is non-poisonous.

Finally, after landing thousands of Germans from the air and in the last stages of the campaign, the Italians landed sea-borne forces—apparently from the Dodecanese Islands.

The Fascist units moved west from one end of the island while the Germans moved east. The defenders were caught in a vise.

Strike of 2,200 Truck Drivers Slows Defense

Shipments of Military Goods Affected at Pittsburgh.

By The Associated Press.

A truck strike crippled Pittsburgh's great armament-making area yesterday.

Officials of the AFL's Teamsters' Union said 2,200 truck drivers and helpers for 179 concerns were ordered out, thereby restricting truck shipments of a wide variety of defense materials. Moreover, both union and management agreed the effect of the strike would reach out to many Eastern states by hampering movement of goods to railroads, factories and warehouses.

Negotiations Collapse.

The strike call was issued after the collapse of negotiations which began on May 13 for a new contract between the union and the companies, members of the Motor Truck Association. The union asked a basic 10 cents an hour increase over the existing 85-cent rate, paid vacations and maintenance of a 48-hour work-week. The employers said the wage demands "are beyond our ability to pay" and proposed a 54-hour week.

Meantime, the Defense Mediation Board and striking lumber workers in the Puget Sound area apparently arrived at an impasse. An official of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO) said the strike started on May 9 would end only if the original demands of the union were met.

Board Summons.

The only agreement was that union representatives would accede to a summons by Board Chairman C. A. Dykstra and appear before the board at Washington on Tuesday.

About 12,000 workers in 52 lumber establishments are involved in the strike.

CIO boommen at Tacoma offered to arbitrate differences with employers in the first break in strikes which have affected nearly 20,000 men in the Pacific Northwest lumber industry.

The boommen, on strike for two weeks, offered to submit three of their five demands to arbitration. The Boommen's Union has only 87 members, but its strike has forced closing of mills and camps employing 4,000 men.

Fine Quality DU PONT PAINT!

The House Paint That Endures

It's brilliantly white, tough, durable! Du Pont House Paint keeps houses beautiful because it stays cleaner! Here's why—

Du Pont Prepared Paint forms a tough, durable film which protects the surface from rust, rot or decay. Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to the elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface of this new paint. This powder is washed away by heavy rains, carrying the dirt with it, and exposing a fresh white surface. This "self-cleaning" process starts after a few months of exposure under normal conditions of weather, but may be delayed under unusual climatic or dust-collecting conditions. Because the self-cleaning process is gradual, the wearing qualities of the film are not abnormally affected.

North Georgia Churches Have Building Boom

Methodist Conference Reported Ahead in Financial Status.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
Reports from all sections of the North Georgia Methodist conference territory as of June 1 indicate that unusual building activity is in progress, and that the general church financial status is in advance of what it was a year ago, with every prospect that all apportionments for the year will be paid 10 cents on the dollar.

"Pastors' salaries have been increased several thousand dollars throughout the conference, with increased askings for benevolences recorded.

Outstanding new building projects are found at Rome, Monroe, Athens, Griffin, Thomaston, Barnesville and Carrollton. Considerable money has been paid on old church debts, and numerous improvements on physical properties.

Revivals Planned.

Outside of the two Atlanta districts, very few churches have as yet held revival meetings. However, more than 1,000 church accessions are reported to this date. In the two Atlanta districts following the recent Greater Atlanta evangelistic campaign 2,550 church accessions were recorded, with 20 of the pastors yet to hold their meetings. Charges in the other districts will hold revival meetings during the coming summer months.

Full reports from the two Atlanta districts will be forthcoming next Monday when the district conference session will be held jointly at Wesley Memorial Church. Brief statements from other districts are as follows:

243 Accessions.

In the Athens-Elbert district, with the Rev. Charles Middlebrooks as superintendent, there were 243 church accessions during the first half of the conference year, and pastors' salaries due up to that time had been paid 89 per cent and benevolence offerings 82 per cent. For the entire year of 1940 only 78 per cent assessed for pastors was paid, and 68 per cent on benevolence askings. Increased askings for this year in the sum of $1,000 are made.

Athens First Church has just bought a new brick parsonage, and Canon is now building a new pastor's home. New church buildings at Gaines Chapel and Bethesda are under construction. Hartwell, Oconee Street, Comer-Corbert, Middleton have made extensive improvements. A new district parsonage has been authorized. $1,105 was contributed as Compassion Day offering.

Pastors in Service
The Rev. L. M. Twigg, superintendent of the Augusta district, says 40,000 soldiers have been placed in camps within his district, and that three of his pastors have been called to the services as chaplains — the Rev. Graham Davis, the Rev. George Stone and the Rev. Ralph Shea.

In that district benevolence askings this year are increased above 1940 in the sum of $1,700, and are one-half paid for the year, and Compassion Day offering of $1,225 in addition. Several charges have increased pastors' salaries, and all one-half paid for the year, and 348 church accessions are recorded.

Buildings Nearly Complete.
Church building work at Augusta Asbury Church and at Union Point will be completed soon, while the Mann Memorial congregation is working toward a new building. Trinity Church has just finished paying for an adjoining lot, and the St. James Church also has bought a lot.

The Rev. T. M. Sullivan, superintendent of the Decatur-Oxford district, reports 400 church accessions, with finances in better condition than any year of the four he has been in charge of the district. Special reference was made to the Decatur First church, improved financial status, and the physical improvements made at Decatur East End church. Physical improvements are reported at Conyers, Harmony Grove and Shady Dale. Monroe First church plans to spend several thousand dollars in improvements.

Interest Renewed.
The Rev. Claude Hendrick, superintendent of the Gainesville district, states renewed interest in the church is manifested, and that salaries have been increased at Bethlehem, Clayton, Buford, Duluth, Jefferson, Toccoa and Winder, while Gainesville First church is now liquidating all indebtedness, and St. Paul church is regularly meeting payments on new church erected since cyclone a few years ago. Toccoa parsonage indebtedness will be cancelled this year, while Clayton is building an educational plant, and doing physical improvement work. Cumming has a new parsonage. A new heating plant, a new pipe organ, church renovation, and an addition to the parsonage are reported for Winder.

Dr. R. L. Russell, superintendent of the Griffin district, said churches in his section have in progress a building boom, and pastors' salaries have been increased $2,500.

FAMILY OF DELEGATES—The Rev. J. Hamby Barton, right, pastor of Calvary Methodist church; Mrs. Barton, left; Miss Edna Barton and Hamby Barton Jr., the entire family, will be members of the Methodist district conference to be held next Monday at Wesley Memorial church. The Rev. Mr. Barton has been an annual conference member 27 years. Mrs. Barton was elected to represent Calvary church. Miss Barton, a teacher in the Decatur public schools, is director of Young People's work in the West Atlanta district. Hamby Barton Jr. will be graduated from Emory University next Saturday and will be licensed to preach next Monday. He will then enter Candler School of Theology for a three-year course of study.

Properties Debt-Free.
No debts on any properties, save at Barnesville, where fire destroyed the former church building. One-half the cost of the new building will be paid this year. The Barnesville Aldora church will shortly begin erection of a new building. Forsyth Methodists are spending on a cash basis some $6,500 on their church and parsonage, and Thomaston Methodists are planning a $25,000 church at Lighttower Memorial, while the Thomaston First church is completing its educational building.

Griffin First church is completing a $17,000 addition. Expenditures for physical improvements are reported from Cedar Grove, Clifton, Hampton, Lovejoy, and Concord. The financial status is better than at this date a year ago, while the Forsyth circuit has paid all benevolence claims in full for the year. The Rev. Blake Craft has been called to Army service as a chaplain.

Beautify Property.
In the LaGrange district, with the Rev. George L. King as superintendent, 100 per cent payment on benevolence claims is planned for this year, while $1,200 was given on Compassion Day. LaGrange district churches have spent some $5,000 in harmony with Bishop Moore's RIB campaign, renovating, identifying and beautifying the properties. Salary increases for pastors amount to $2,300.

Although Dr. W. H. LaPrade, district superintendent of the Rome district, is confined to a hospital with a broken leg, pastors are carrying on without loss of a step in the forward movement. Pastors' salaries have been advanced some $2,600. Building projects are completion of a $35,000 educational plant at Rome First church, the $20,000 building program at Carrollton is nine-tenths completed, while Douglasville is erecting a $12,000 auditorium, and Rockmart a $10,000 Sunday school annex. General financial condition in advance of this date a year ago.

S. G. Williams, 76, Dies of Auto Crash Injuries

Swainsboro Leader Was Former Head of School Board.

S. G. Williams Sr., 76, former mayor of Swainsboro, died early yesterday at an Atlanta hospital from injuries received a week before in an auto collision at Swainsboro.

His wife, injured in the same wreck, is in a critical condition at Piedmont hospital. She was not informed of her husband's death.

Williams was thrown out of the car, driven by another member of the family. He suffered internal injuries and a possible fractured skull. His wife broke her collarbone and several ribs.

Originally from Bryan county, Williams resided in Statesboro before moving to Swainsboro about 45 years ago. At one time he was chairman of the city board of education.

Surviving, besides his wife, are: five children, J. Palmer Williams, of Jacksonville; S. G. Williams Jr., of Swainsboro; Miss Celestine Williams, of Swainsboro; Mrs. Tom King, of Lancaster, S. C.; and Mrs. George Bowling, of Atlanta; a brother, G. H. Williams, of Dublin; and three sisters, Mrs. Sally Purvis, of Pembroke, Ga.; Mrs. Belle Stephens, of Savannah, and Mrs. Nellie Roach, of Hagah, Ga. Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Swainsboro Methodist church.

U. D. C. To Mark Birthday of Davis

The Atlanta Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will celebrate the birthday of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the chapter house at 826 Juniper street.

Principal speaker on the commemorative program will be George Hamilton, treasurer of the state of Georgia.

Military service crosses will be awarded to two Confederate veterans.

Canning Plant Wage-Hour Drive Opens

400 U. S. Inspectors To Begin Here, Other Centers.

The Wage-Hour Administration announced yesterday in Washington that 400 inspectors would begin a drive today in Atlanta and other southern centers for compliance with the wage-hour law in the canning industry.

Administrator Philip B. Fleming said the inspectors would start in the south and work northward with the fresh fruit and vegetable season until every canning plant in the nation was inspected.

The wage-hour legal staff Fleming added, would handle court prosecutions of flagrant violators. There would be no "crack down," he said, on employers who made minor violations while trying to obey the law.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 2, 1941.

War Aims

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, in setting forth the "war aims" of his country, stated the "four freedoms" named by President Roosevelt. These are freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

To these he added another "aim." That is, political and military restrictions which shall make it forever impossible for Germany to gain challenge world peace.

In more definite language, Senator George Norris, of Nebraska, on Thursday advocated complete destruction of Germany's military machine, of all her ships, planes, guns, tanks and munitions, and of all her factories where such things are turned out.

Complete destruction of Germany's military machine and capacity to produce the lethal weapons of war is an absolutely indispensable requisite to any lasting peace, said the Nebraskaan.

Of course, Senator Norris is correct. There is no basis of permanent peace for Europe while Germany, the power which has brought wars upon the world within a century, is left in position to start a sixth. After the defeat of Hitlerism, the world must devise some effective way of shackling the war tendency that nation.

The four freedoms listed are important as goals someday to be achieved. Some day they will be living fact. But not these, nor any other ideals can become true, while there is a nation on earth which ruthlessly turns to the use of military force whenever it thinks it in thus serve its own selfish ends.

After the war not only must there be the destruction of the German military machine outlined by Senator Norris, but a way must be devised by which the peace-loving nations can promptly scotch in its incipency any German move for rearmament, no matter how unobtrusive, that move may be.

There must be no more drilling of troops under the deception of mass athletics, no more training of war pilots in engineless gliders.

Who remembers when kings were happy as pigs?

A Health Problem

Dr. Allen H. Bunce, president of the Medical Association of Georgia, touched upon a peculiarly southern problem when he said, speaking before the Georgia Public Health Association, that the Negro population presents one of the most pressing health problems in this state.

He pointed out that, among the Negro population, venereal diseases, tuberculosis and contagious disease of childhood are exceptionally prevalent. Diseases caused by lack of proper nutrition are also taking a heavy toll, though we live in a land of plenty," he added.

Dr. Bunce touched the core of this problem when he said that what affects the health of the race, affects the health of the other. It is impossible, under modern conditions of life, to quarantine either race against the other.

Negroes are, almost exclusively, found in Georgia homes as servants. In our businesses, offices, stores and shops, they come in close contact with us. They constitute, socially, a race apart, yet in everyday life they provide some of our closest contacts. It is Negro women who nurse and guard our children, it is Negroes who cook our food and serve us at the table. It is Negroes who wash our clothes.

It is impossible to segregate a disease which may be rampant among Negroes, from the white people.

Thus everything which affects the health of the Negro population directly affects the health of all. Rehousing which provides clean and sanitary homes for Negroes should be welcomed enthusiastically by all white people. Conditions under which Negroes have for too long lived, many times in shacks utterly lacking in all opportunity for decency and cleanliness, have been a disgrace to the south.

Public health services which detect and cure diseases among the Negro population are directly benefitting the white race. Better schooling for Negroes, teaching them better how to live and to avoid disease, is another direct benefit to us all.

Whenever a Georgia community, or authority, demurs at spending money on such things as these, for the Negroes, it is directly injuring the health of, and imperiling the safety of, the entire population, white equally with colored.

For selfish reasons if for no others, we have got to realize that the white people of the south are responsible for conditions under which the Negroes live and, if those conditions provoke disease and vice, it is the white people, in the long run, who will suffer and pay.

"Women's conversation," says a Canadian psychologist, "clings to worn subjects." And where worn and who wore them, and the probable cost.

The Real America

It was gratifying to read, in Dorothy Thompson's column published in The Constitution Thursday last, that she has discovered New York is far from representative of America. Miss Thompson has recently made what she calls a "barnstorming trip," calling at such crossroads communities, hinterland centers, as Boston, Tulsa, Richmond, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Hartford and San Francisco. And she expresses surprise that the folks in all these cities seem to have just about the same views in regard to the international situation. "By and large," she writes, "the sentiment of this country is behind the administration in all classes and in all sections."

It is, perhaps, unfortunate for the nation as a whole that excessive attention is paid to anything emanating from New York or Washington. The reason, of course, is that the great press services have headquarters in those cities, the vast majority of the weekly and monthly publications come from there. It is but natural, but nevertheless unfortunate, that undue emphasis is thus laid upon anything that occurs in the two cities.

As Miss Thompson points out, Lindbergh spoke before some 20,000 people in New York and his speech, and the meeting, found nationwide attention. Yet Herbert Agar speaks before 3,000 in Chapel Hill, N. C., which, proportionately, would mean an audience of more than a million in New York.

As a matter of fact, New York does not average up, in sentiment and ordinary American understanding, with other cities of the nation. New York's population is so heterogeneous, it contains so many groups of, as yet, unabsorbed foreign elements, that it is extremely unrepresentative of America. It is possible to secure a crowd of 10,000 to 20,000 for any cause, in New York, and the propagandists there are quick to make capital out of the fact.

Dorothy Thompson says only an average proportion of the national intelligence is concentrated in the midtown section of New York.

To any one who knows the real America, thoroughly, that statement appears exaggerated. The proportion of national intelligence in midtown New York, is actually, far below the average. New York is not America. It is an anomaly, a strange, unrealistic place which Americans regard in wonder and a certain pride, for its very size, but which, to true Americans, is merely curious in the real American scene.

There is more than surface truth to the hackneyed comment, "a good place to visit but a poor place to live."

In Edinburgh, crops are to be grown on six municipal golf layouts. First step, of course, is sending the dubs ahead, with niblicks, to break the ground.

WHAT TO DO

(From The Gainesville Eagle.)
The school bells are almost silent. The three R's have been learned or flunked. It's the beginning of the end of the scholastic year of 1940-41. And with the advent of vacation days arises the obvious question of what to do with them.

Of course the pupils are glad to be free to kick up their heels a bit. Their pen pals, rather than their schoolmates, are the ones to slip a bit, and it's natural. But after a few weeks, freedom and time begin to lag on their hands and those alert minds are eager to seek new diversions, new pastimes. It is then that the parent should come in.

First and foremost, the summer months should be devoted to the youth's family. A healthy tan, vigorous muscles, springy step and good food and rest should be sought diligently. It cost money to educate that mind; is the body to be neglected although its care costs so little?

In these days the child who does not know how to swim, play a reasonable game of tennis, build a camp fire, fell a tree, is seriously handicapped. He cannot mix with his chums as an equal, he cannot hold his own against them, he is a little short of his entitled stature.

Parents should see to it that he is not thus penalized. Instead, they should see to it that he carries his end of every bargain with credit. He is not going to do this without a sound body along with that sound mind. And, fortunately, there is not a child alive who does not want to enjoy life vigorously, vitally, completely.

There is no need to insist on any particular sport. Let him do as he pleases, but encourage him to go into at least one sport seriously. It will go a long way toward building stamina, self-reliance, a fair and keen competitive spirit.

And he'll thank the parent who so encourages him.

A London analyst comes up with the low-down on Adolf: "He breaks his promises, but squares it by keeping his threats."

The plane industry is toying with a reversible propeller which would diminish accidents in landing. The improved model, perhaps, will cut the pilot's hair.

THE WORLD TODAY

By JAY G. HAYDEN.

PROMISE TO ARABS WASHINGTON, June 1.—The pledge given by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, on behalf of the British government, to support an independent Syria and a united Arab world is a great interest. It is clearly aimed at detaching the Arab sovereigns and chieftains from German influence. The odds are that a battle of Syria will follow speedily upon the battle of Crete, Syria being the gateway to the oil fields of Iraq and Iran.

For more than 20 years the foes of England have fostered the Arab grievance that the latter had wilfully broken the promise given as early as 1916 by Colonel Lawrence to Emir Hussein and to his son, Feysal. Their revolt against the Turkish overlord was to be rewarded by the creation of an Arab kingdom as a part of the peace settlement. It was a fact that, almost at the same time, the British cabinet of that period found itself compelled or had deemed it opportune to come to terms with the French about Syria and with the Zionist claimants about Palestine.

Today, British policy partially shakes off that old shackle. Everything develops as though the talk of 25 years ago between Lawrence and Feysal had been resumed. The successors of Lawrence, of course, will attempt afresh to win their Arab interlocutors to the idea of the "Jewish national home" in return for the free gift of Syria. But whether such men as the exiled mufti of Jerusalem will be amenable to a compromise at that point remains to be seen.

ARAB UNITY UNLIKELY

It would be useless to expatiate upon the possibility of bringing the Arab world to unity. Most competent observers are not ready to regard it as a practical proposition. In the Islamic world of today, King Ibn Saud, of Arabia, enjoys the greatest measure of authority and prestige. He alone might have the power to translate into concrete deeds the high-sounding scheme. But whether he entertains the same imperial ambition as did King Hussein, whom he ousted from Mecca, is doubtful.

Moreover, from the religious point of view, he hardly presents the figure of an orthodox. It is in Vichy, in Damascus and in Beirut that, for various reasons, Eden's statement is likely to call forth the keenest reactions.

An aspect of the British decision hardly can fail to be welcomed in Vichy with some glee. On August 6, 1940, Winston Churchill, in a letter addressed to General Charles de Gaulle, bound his government to "secure the integral restoration of France's independence and greatness." That phrase was interpreted generally to mean that the metropolitan and overseas domain of France would be re-established as it was before the defeat of 1940. But now, Syria is being excluded from that guarantee. The average Frenchman will easily perceive in the British move the natural outcome of the policy of co-operation initiated with Germany.

Moreover, held by the French government as Syria was under a mandate of the League of Nations, he never considered that land in Vichy are sure to exclaim that De Gaulle is a puppet of the British cabinet and that the British cabinet makes light of its so-called commitments to him.

"GRAB" WILL BE SHOUTED A British grab will be denounced and full advantage taken of the apprehensions invariably felt by all the Christian minorities throughout Syria whenever any prospect of Arab ascendancy seems to draw nearer and become more definite. The patriarch of the Maronites, last winter, expressed friendship for England. He already has begun to shift his allegiance to the other side. But, as against those profits, Vichy may have to foot a heavy bill; the strong impulse of the Syrian Nationalists to build up a government of their own with the help of the British army of General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson in Palestine.

The successful failure of the political step taken by Mr. Churchill and his colleagues to retrieve the fortunes of the British Empire in the Near and the Middle East will depend not only upon the material resources that can be thrown into the struggle, but upon the alertness of the intelligence service in that part of the world. Hitherto, in this war, that service has not given a good account of itself. Almost at every turn it was caught napping.

NO INTERPRETERS

For instance, in Libya, when the Senoussis proposed to fight against the hated Italian rulers, no officer with any command of the dialect could be found in the whole British army. Two officers dispatched from India proved unequal to the task and the services of Free French interpreters had to be enlisted.

After the failure was the tolerance shown to Aziz-el-Masri, formerly a Turkish officer, and an assistant of the German General Liman von Sanders, who, after the fall of the Egyptian army, was not forced out of his function by British vigilance, but by the working of the age limit and, up to a recent date, was allowed to proceed quietly with his intrigues. Around the confines of Asia and Africa there is a branch of His Majesty's forces which, for years, has been sadly neglected: the "timar" or "tribe" of Saint Georges. And yet its equipment is of the simplest pattern, does not require shipping space and cannot be interfered with by submarines and tanks.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

What Is

"England?"

I have just finished reading a book. A very great novel, I believe. It is new. It is said to be the finest thing yet written about the war. It is called "This Above All." Written by Eric Knight and published by Harper & Brothers.

Few books have so impressed me in a long, long time.

It is the kind of book from which you hunger to read, to your best friends, long extracts. And you almost ache with desire that they, too, should read it.

There is, in that book, an argument between a man and a woman. The man has known nothing but bitter poverty, in the slums, and can't see what reason there is for him to fight. And the woman tries to tell him. Let me quote her description of an England worth fighting for.

"If I said it was Shakespeare, and thatched roofs—and the countryside, you could mock. Because those things have been told before and I haven't cleverness at finding new phrases that make them alive in words again. If I said it was speakers in Hyde Park free to say what they wish—and polite bobbies on the corner—and these cliffs here, and Drake alive in memory—you could curl up your lip superciliously."

"If I said it meant the Magna Carta and all that went into it—and the freedom of common man that sprang from it—and speaking your mind without fear, and the knowledge that your own home, no matter how wretched, is still your castle and all the heritage of liberty that man in this age has found—you could laugh because it's been said before."

"If I said England was the thump of a bat at cricket, and the New Forest deep in ferns and holly trees standing tall; if I said it was blossom rich in spring and bluebells like a God-sent carpet, and the rain and the shine and the green of our blessed land—if I said it was the larks that will sing here tomorrow, high in the sun tomorrow, and forever—if I said it was the shout of a newsboy on the corner, or the sound of a taxi horn, or the quick, clipped, cheerful talk of a cockney passing in the dark, or the age and dignity of our cities—the fog and the green of grass and softness of voice and skin—or the sense of fair play that we've given to the world—if I said it was all those, you could mock because words have said it so often before that they have tarnished the things or blotted them from understanding."

Bad Rulers, Admittedly.

"You tell me that we've had bad rulers—and I add that we've had bad ones before—and they've come and gone. You could laugh at me if I said that my poor interpreters are England—and not bad cabinets and bad ministers. You could debate and out-argue me and destroy those shining things that are there—always there—somehow eternal like spring and falling in love. Things that always exist and always keep on happening.

"I can't tell you of them if you won't see them beyond the emptiness of words. But I'll make you see."

"England—it's—it's Captain Allen—and Monty—and the boys living in a row at Douai."

"And it's you, it's you, England is you coming up the road from Douai, and standing up to your neck in water at Dunkirk. And England is helping the weaker men into the boats instead of getting in yourself—and seeing the last boatload filled up and knowing you'd have to go back for another day and lie on the beach, firing a ding-a-ling Lee-Enfield against dive bombers."

"For whatever you are, blood and bone and mind and heart and spirit, England has made you—every part of you. And even if you don't understand the other things, you understand that. And when you say the word, England, it must be for you now as it is for me—warm inside here, like music that's rich beyond the power of music. I can feel it in my breast here."

"It's one word, Clive: England. I say it, and it means all those things and sometimes—just saying it—it's so much to bear. And—and those are the things—and you've got to go back and fight for them."

"Because—that's England, too—knowing we shan't be beaten—knowing we'll never give in if every last one of us dies—we won't be beaten, we won't. We just won't!"

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Friday, June 2, 1916:

"Washington, June 1.—General Carranza's note demanding withdrawal of American troops from Mexico has brought no change in the determination of President Wilson to maintain the present troop disposition until the de facto government attends the convention."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Tuesday, June 2, 1891:

"This, the thirty-ninth annual session of the International Typographical Union, is held in Boston. Atlanta's two representatives leave today to attend the convention. They are Mr. L. P. Huddleston, representing the Atlanta Typographical Union, and Mr. George W. Morgan, member of the board of trustees for the Childs-Drexel Home for Union Printers."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Menace

NEW YORK, June 1.—There is much in the latest Lindbergh speech that I can agree with, but the very heart of his discussion is a menace to the country and to the liberties for which he consistently has failed to express any warm devotion.

Yes, it is true that we have been inching sidewise into war, that any warnings that he may have given in time, none of which I remember, were almost wholly disregarded in favor of socialistic "gains" for professional unionists, Communists and inveterate Ivy-League study-Boys, and that we have assumed another mission to impose our ideas on the rest of the world.

But when Lindbergh asks, "Is it not time for us to turn to new policies and a new leadership?" my answer is that the next change of leadership in the United States cannot be made according to our schedule until January, 1945, and that, meanwhile, change can be accomplished only by such violence as would drive the country into snarling gangs of free-lance patrioters, and duplicate here the situation that enabled Hitler to take Russia by the throat. We elect our leaders every four years, and the present one has barely begun his third term, to which he was elected by a people who had every reason to know just what sort of man he was and just what means and methods he was using to elect himself.

Were Not Duped

The American people cannot plead that they were duped by Franklin D. Roosevelt at any time after 1934, by which time of it became the dew was off the rose and the opposition had begun to discern the moles and whiskers on the bride's face in the cold light of morning with the makeup off and to appraise her temper, character and habits. The people had occasion to view Mr. Roosevelt as he was inclined to trickery and the oblique approach, that he would give largest out of the public purse to buy and organize the mendicant or otherwise dependent vote under party politicians and cold-eyed professional case workers, that he viewed with jovial tolerance the exploitation of public trust for private profit, and that he really had no plan but was just improvising as he went along and tossing another batch of commuters to the lions when they seemed like it quiet down.

The best campaign war really a hot one in which the people were told the whole truth about President Roosevelt and reminded that, like some fighters in the ring, he had a way of looking at your shoes when he was fixing to bust you on the chin. Moreover, they knew that neither he nor William had any right to pledge himself to a four-year policy toward the war, and that any pledge to shun "foreign" wars would have meant a promise not to resist any enemy, all international wars being "foreign."

You don't live under a President eight years without learning all there is to know about him, and the American people knew Franklin D. Roosevelt as your hand knows your own pocket. Then they elected him a third term, and, as one who opposed him and most of his works, I have to believe they did that because they knew him so, rather than in spite of their knowledge. We are supposed to be enlightened people—not cattle—in the United States, and if we aren't, then we have been wasting an awful lot of hours and money on education and ought to convert those colleges into imbeciliums.

But now comes Lindbergh, whose indifference to the spiritual things of Americanism has been prominent in all his speeches, proposing "new policies under a new leadership."

How To Do It?

Well, it goes without saying that we can't adopt new policies without a change of leadership, and that we can't repudiate the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt, with all his known faults, without repudiating the people, and I should like to know how Lindbergh proposes to go about that. And freedom of speech still being one of the liberties which Lindbergh enjoys, I would urge him to give us all a tell right away, because time's a-wastin', and I am one who has wanted a change of leadership for years.

If it is impeachment that Lindbergh has in mind, his plan falls in before the words are uttered, because that would give us Henry Wallace for President, who was elected by Mr. Roosevelt himself, with the very idea that if he should die from the wear and tear of office Wallace would pursue the same policies. And, moreover, President Roosevelt will give us all a tell right away, because time's a-wastin', and I am one who has wanted a change of leadership for years.

Word Stories
By W. Worthington Wells

The recent reports of sabotage by the inhabitants of the conquered countries has resulted in severe REPRISALS being levied by the Germans.

REPRISAL. Reprisal is a noun and is pronounced re-PRIS-al with the accent on the second syllable which is pronounced like prize.

Reprisals are generally levied against the peoples of another state when they have violated some law of war or committed unlawful acts against an enemy power.

The recent seizure of foreign ships by the United States Coast Guard was in a measure reprisal against those nations for violation of the United States laws.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THOSE AMENDMENTS Without a single ax to grind or a single ulterior motive, I would like again to discuss the proposed amendments. The voting is on Tuesday.

Georgia is to vote on 68 amendments. The ballot will be long and difficult to handle. It will require patience on the part of the voter. Also unselfishness.

With the exception of three amendments, all are of local application.

It is not good citizenship, because Georgia's laws are archaic, to refuse to vote for them. They are to enable one community to improve its waterworks; for another to pave some streets, for another to refund a bond issue, for another to build a dock.

Georgia's law requires that these measures be voted on in a state-wide election. This is not good sense. It is a relic of some bad thinking years ago. But it is not fair to deprive these localities of their improvements, on which they have expressed themselves, simply because one does not believe in the system. The localities don't believe in it, either. It is the law. They have to abide by the law.

So, be a good citizen. Don't get angry at the law and prevent the improvement of local conditions in Georgia merely because a foolish law annoys you.

Go to the polls. Give the people who have approved these improvements in their own communities the right to put them into effect.

By the time the next legislature assembles the accumulated opinion should be sufficient to permit the establishment of home rule and thus abolish the ridiculous necessity of submitting local measures in state-wide elections.

THE FOUR-YEAR TERM

There is a four-year term for Governor proposed for Georgia.

I honestly do not see how any citizen interested in good government can refuse to vote for it.

It provides that the man elected to the office of Governor cannot succeed himself. It limits him to one term.

That is desirable.

It eliminates the political race in the middle of the present two-year system.

If one will analyze it calmly, the inescapable evidence of furthering the cause of good government will become clear. It is argued that four years would permit too much malfeasance of office on the part of a corrupt Governor, should one be elected.

That won't stand up. What hails a Governor or any politician? Public opinion.

How are politicians able to hide corrupt maneuvers and muddy the waters of public opinion? By political campaigns.

About the time a Governor gets into office and begins any sort of program, good or bad, he has to start running for office under our present system of giving an "indorsement term" to first-year Governors. If he has initiated a bad program, he is able to hide it and confuse the judgment on it by the heat and emotions of the campaign.

If it is a good program, he has not had time to get it firmly established. His opponents can shoot at it and confuse public opinion.

In a four-year stretch of service public opinion could really observe and make definite judgments without being disturbed or obscured by political campaigns.

An employee would, if capable, be able to demonstrate ability in four years. It would lead to a stronger move for civil service and the merit system.

Our present system of giving an "indorsement term" means our Governors serve four years. They have the evil of a campaign in the middle of their four-year term.

The opponents of this measure started out by saying they would be willing to vote for four-year terms—they believed in it—but, they said, the budget powers now held by the Governor were too powerful to continue.

They were not well-informed. The budget powers are in effect only through the present term. They expire with the good year 1942.

We don't get reforms all at once. We have to take them one at a time.

Let's get this one Tuesday. Let's vote for the four-year term.

THE HOSPITAL AUTHORITY

Atlanta needs a new hospital. Grady's old building catches fire almost every week. Only constant care and observation prevents the wooden old fire-trap from producing a horror and a tragedy which will shock the nation.

It now is possible for Atlantans to vote for this new authority. The new authority will be enabled to build a new hospital, modern and fully able to care for the needs of the city.

This ought to be passed. A great many men of means have interested themselves in it. If the authority is created, Atlanta will have a hospital sufficient for the years to come. If not, the city will lose more than just a new hospital.

This is a time for planning. We have seen evidence of what planning will do.

Atlanta must plan for this new hospital.

Atlanta, too, is dependent on help from the state.

Let's forget selfishness. Let's forget irritation at the archaic law. It is a foolish law. But it is there. We cannot now escape it.

Let's vote for the four-year term, for the hospital authority, for all the local bills—

And against the preposterous plan of calling the legislature in for annual sessions.

Longs for 'Uncle Tom,' Little Eva and The Bloodhounds

New and perhaps streamlined version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is being written for the stage by Henrietta Buckmaster and Len Ward, both experienced playwrights of New York. Wonder how it will go over?

Certainly "Uncle Tom" has all the elements of drama. I'll bet not two dozen readers ever saw it unless they're from the north. It was never quite popular below the line. I saw it, as a boy, and it was a scream. The 10-20-30 cent stock company "played it straight" but nevertheless it was funny. Even to a small boy.

There was Uncle Tom, with a kinky gray wig. And Simon Legree, the merciless overseer with the bull whip. And Eliza, the octo-iron who fled with her child across the floating ice in the flooded Ohio river. And the bloodhounds, ravenous beasts. And, of course, Little Eva, the angel child, who floated up to heaven on a wire as the final curtain fell. And Topsy, in black face and pigtail.

Perhaps the most dramatic criticism ever written was the briefest. Its author's name is lost to fame, but it appeared in a Denver paper. It read, as follows, to wit:

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" played the Tabor Grand last night. The bloodhounds were good, but had poor support."

The bloodhounds were the stars of "Uncle Tom." Human members of the company were required to play everything from Hamlet to the villain in "East Lynne," but the dogs were pampered pets of which just one role was demanded. They ate, too, no matter how the rest of the cast fared.

Awe-Inspiring Brutus

They were never bloodhounds. The true bloodhound is a flopped, mild-mannered little creature resembling a beagle. He inspires no awe and he wouldn't bite a sparrow. He had no box-office value.

The Uncle Tom companies—or "Tom Shows," to use the vernacular, used Great Danes or mastiffs. That was before the day of the German shepherd, commonly known as the police dog.

There was always a street parade. With Simon Legree doubling in brass with his trombone and Little Eva, in filmy white, perched in an open carriage. I have read in ancient annals of the stage that several Little Evas played that sweet child's part for upwards of 30 years.

But the dogs stole the show. They were restrained on a leash by a fearless company manager and bystanders were warned to stand aside.

The bloodhounds' task was to chase Eliza and her child across the floating ice of the Ohio, into "free country."

Usually they entered into their role with enthusiasm. Because they had not eaten since the last show—and Eliza's calico dress had pockets lined with thick and juicy raw steaks. Or, at least, bones, depending on what could be procured with passes to the show. I'd like to see "Uncle Tom" again. I think I'd rather see it as Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote it, but if the new version comes this way I'm going to be there.

Not Up to Me

Letter from man in Orlando—who signs but asks that his name not be used—asks what I think about Westbrook Pegler's fierce attack on Florida and Floridians because of a lynching down there. He refers to my backing up Pegler's views about a Broadway columnist and asks: "What about this?"

Mr. Pegler is a bigger man than I am, Gunga Din. And able to take care of himself. The Florida senate denounced him for his denunciation of Florida. Which seems to make it even.

Sometimes it seems to me we folks down south are too inclined to espouse a cause or a man, do or die, right or wrong. Which isn't logical.

POSTAL SAVING STAMPS AS GIFTS FOR DEFENSE

Editor, Constitution: In most every paper you see something about the purchase of postal saving stamps and national defense bonds, funds from the sale of these going to our defense needs.

About a year ago I suggested to the Post Office Department in Washington that there were many citizens who would like to make voluntary contributions to the cause, as the debt is going to be on them anyway, and a lot of people hate the word "tax" and would rather make theirs in what you might term free will offerings, and all that is raised in this manner would be deducted from the amount that we are going to eventually have to pay. It was not thought at that time that this would be a feasible idea, but I still think it is good. A "dime a day" now wouldn't be half as bad as what we will be called on later to contribute and we might as well start to pay now.

My idea in this would be for everyone to secure from their postmaster one of the dime postal saving cards on which to affix their donations and when full send to some central point to be consolidated and sent to the donor being sent a card attesting to his contribution.

I also believe that if merchants would accept these stamps in lieu of cash for their face value that it would stimulate their sale.

BUSINESS MAN BACKS THE FOUR-YEAR TERM

Editor, Constitution: As a business man I heartily endorse the four-year term for governor, which, in my opinion, would be a progressive step forward for Georgia. Such a term would do much to eliminate an almost continuous political campaign, which is at present forced on the executive in office.

I cannot understand why some members of the press fail to see the wisdom of a four-year term.

I am a native of North Carolina and the four-year term for governor in that state has been highly successful. I have lived in Georgia for many years and should like to see the same fine step taken here.

Possible Plans Of Chief Justice Puzzle Capital

Supreme Court Nears End of Another Historic Term.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—The capital speculated tonight on the future plans of Chief Justice Hughes as the supreme court neared the end of another historic eight-month term tomorrow.

Some observers expressed the opinion that the 79-year-old jurist would remain on the tribunal. They said he was in good health and had been unusually cheerful of late.

There were others, however, who thought the chief justice would retire. They pointed to his age and the fact that Mrs. Hughes had been ill several months.

No indication. Hughes has given no indication that he plans to leave the bench. His only comment, when asked his intentions, was: "I have nothing to say."

In the past, he has told friends that he intended to remain on the tribunal as long as his health enabled him to perform the arduous duties.

Although he is 79, the chief justice has 12 years yet to serve to establish a new record. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was 81 when he retired in 1932, after serving 30 years.

Died at 87. Chief Justice Roger B. Taney, of Maryland, stayed on the court until he died at 87. Two others who served until they were 82 were Louis D. Brandeis, of Massachusetts, who retired in 1939, and Gabriel Duval, of Maryland, who retired in 1835.

Hughes is the only member of the court eligible to retire at full pay by virtue of having served 10 years and reached the age of 70. Approaching him in age are 65-year-old Harlan F. Stone and 65-year-old Owen J. Roberts.

Loyalty of All Needed Now, Kennedy Says

Duty of Every American Is Plain, He Declares.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 1.—(AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Britain, told the graduation class of Notre Dame University today "our national security demands from all of us an unlimited loyalty."

In a prepared address, he said, "within the week the President of the United States has issued a most historic, and most solemn pronouncement. Calling upon his constitutional powers, President Roosevelt has proclaimed an unlimited national emergency."

What is the technical legal significance of this decree may be for the moment unimportant. What is important to everybody, even to all of us who feel strongly that our country should keep out of this war, is this—your President and my President—the leader of this nation having consistently and repeatedly assured this nation that he does not intend to take us into war unless attacked—has announced that the threat to our national security demands from all of us an unlimited loyalty, a cessation of personal antagonism which the defense and protection of this nation require.

"When our chief has pronounced the solemn words, 'I declare an unlimited national emergency,' the duty of every American is plain," Kennedy declared. "We pledge allegiance to our flag and to the republic for which it stands."

Census Shows Decline In Accidental Deaths

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—The Census Bureau came out today with the cheering news that the United States is a pretty safe place to live, and getting safer.

The 92,623 accidental deaths in 1939, it said, represented a decline of 1.3 per cent from 1938. And the death rate from accidents was only 70.9 for each 100,000 of population, and third lowest on record. Both 1921 and 1922 had better records.

From its data, the bureau figured that you have only about one chance in a million of dying from a poisonous snake's bite, a fate that befell 102 persons in 1939. And your chance of being killed by lightning is only one in 338,000. Lightning took 390 lives in 1939.

Women Voters Plan Drive To Aid Production

First Rally in Move To Arouse Public Is Called.

The Atlanta League of Women Voters will fire the first gun in the "Battle of Production" campaign, at their meeting Wednesday morning.

This marks the launching of a nation-wide effort of the National League of Women Voters to inform and arouse the public to the extreme necessity of winning the "Battle of Production" now.

The Council of the National League of Women Voters in initiating the campaign said: "Because our form of government is being so seriously challenged, the League, which has worked for 21 years to make democratic processes effective, is now determined to put its understanding and experience to work in defense of that democracy."

This plan can succeed only if the people recognize the emergency, and work and sacrifice with the unity of purpose hitherto characteristic of war."

The Atlanta League of Women

Voters will center its first discussion of the Battle of Production on the answer to the question upmost in the public's mind at the moment, "What Does Unlimited National Emergency Mean?"

Mrs. E. G. Sorenson, foreign policy chairman of the Atlanta League, will explain what powers our government has under the National Emergency Proclamation and how these powers may be used.

This meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Paul Ackerly, 30 Inman circle, N. E., at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mrs. J. H. Lester will preside.

Russians Capture Frontier Violators

MOSCOW, June 1.—(AP)—Izvestia, Soviet government newspaper, disclosed today that many violators of the Western Russian frontier had been captured when it was announced a government award to a peasant named Shpindel, of Lubachev, Lwow province.

The province is in Russian-occupied Poland. A badge of honor was given Shpindel for "having risked his own life more than once and having detained several dozen violators of the state frontiers," Izvestia said.

California has 19,471,000 orange trees; Florida, 13,135,000; and there are 2,032,000 in Arizona and Texas.

Gallup Poll Reveals: Public Sees War If Nazis Win

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion. Copyright, 1941.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 1.—That Adolf Hitler's speeches have failed to reassure Americans regarding Germany's intentions toward this country, and that a majority of Americans think a victorious Germany would eventually start a war against the United States, are facts which emerge today from a nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

If Britain is defeated in the present struggle, 62 per cent of those interviewed say they think Germany and Italy will launch an attack on this country "within the next 10 years."

Only 29 per cent think there would not be such an attack, and 9 per cent say they are undecided. Whether or not the majority of American voters are right in estimating Nazi intentions as they do, the survey sheds considerable light on this country's desire to aid Britain, "even at the risk of getting into war."

The public's feeling also has great significance for America's national defense program, and for this country's efforts in consolidating the nations of the Western Hemisphere against Axis inroads.

Voters in the survey were asked: "If Germany and Italy should defeat Britain in the present war, do you think Germany and Italy would start a war against the United States within the next 10 years?"

Typical Reply. A typical reply is this one, from an easterner in his twenties: "We've got to expect an attack sooner or later if Britain is allowed to go down. After all, we remember that Hitler also said he had no more territorial demands in Europe—not so very long ago."

Nationally the answers were: Think Axis would attack 62%

Save Electricity! The Response Is Fine, But--- NOT YET ENOUGH

Swiftly the responses are flooding in upon us—from merchants and manufacturers, private citizens and public officials. To our request for a reduction in electric power consumption, they are making swift answer.

Store window, showcase, billboard and decorative lights have been turned out. Street lights have been reduced. Theaters, filling stations and many others are co-operating. Within one short week, the blackout of a large part of the commercial lighting in Georgia has become an accomplished fact. Within a brief space of time, the response of a large group of patriotic citizens has been amazingly rapid, enthusiastic, and thorough.

But enough people have not yet done enough. Regretfully, we must say that Georgia's sacrifices in meeting this emergency have only begun!

What Is The Problem?

Here is why you are asked to conserve every kilowatt hour of electricity you possibly can:

This year, 1941, for the first five months, has been the driest on record since 1904. Rainfall in Georgia has been only about half of normal. We had had two dry years before that. As a result, the water in the rivers is running very low. The water in storage reservoirs upon which hydroelectric plants depend is seriously depleted.

This is not a Georgia problem alone. It is Southwide in its extent. In Tennessee, in Alabama, in Georgia, in North and South Carolina—everywhere the situation is the same. Storage lakes which should be nearly full at this season of the year are only about a third full. And we are going into hot summer weather when little rainfall can be expected.

Combined with the water shortage there has been an unprecedented increase in power use for National Defense. Aluminum is the most important single necessity for armament production. Most of the aluminum is produced in the Southeast. Munitions plants, steel plants, military training camps and cantonments must have power.

The power requirements of the Southeast have increased 25 per cent in one year. As a result, the problem of meeting all requirements for power—military and civilian, industrial, commercial and residential—is extremely serious. The power demand could be met except for the drought, but we have the drought.

At the rate of use existing a week ago, the reservoirs were being rapidly drained of their remaining stores of water. Without relief, the stored water would all be gone within less than two months. After that, there would be collapse—paralysis of the electrical supply in whole or part.

What Can Be Done?

A breakdown in electrical service cannot be allowed to take place. The whole Southeast is involved. Furthermore, the United States Government is involved because of its demand for power for National Defense, a function which cannot be curtailed or interrupted.

In this pressing emergency, the larger public and private power production agencies have pooled their resources. Working with the authorization of the United States War Department, Federal Power Commission, and Office of Production Management, they are asking for voluntary reductions in the use of electricity by ALL consumers. They are asking for the elimination of all non-essential uses.

Throughout the Southeast, an over-all twenty per cent reduction must be realized. But service must be maintained for hospitals, city water pumping, the aluminum industry and other essential enterprises. So, reductions totalling 33 per cent must be made by everybody else.

An over-all reduction of 20 per cent in total use throughout the Southeast will be sufficient to keep the reservoirs at their present levels until general rains bring relief. With a 20 per cent total reduction, our section can scrape by, on fuel-burning plants and run-of-stream hydroelectric plants.

Homes Must Be Reached

The reply to this appeal during the past week has been magnificent. But more must be done! What are YOU doing to help save electricity?

Every one of the 200,000 homes to which we supply electricity can help in this big program. And we believe that every one of them will. Don't feel that what you can do is too little to matter. Nothing is too little to matter in this situation. The amount of electricity you can save each day may be small, but many small savings together make big savings.

If every one of the 200,000 homes we serve can save one kilowatt hour a day, the total saving will be 200,000 kilowatt hours a day. And that WILL help, substantially.

SAVE ELECTRICITY in your home! SAVE ELECTRICITY at your work, at play! Don't waste it—every saving you can make is needed.

The help of EVERYONE is needed, and we believe that EVERYONE will help.

Some Ways To Conserve Electricity In Your Home

1. Turn out all lights not actually in use.
2. Turn off your radio when you leave the room or when you are not listening to a program.
3. Disconnect your electric iron when you are not actually using it.
4. Keep your refrigerator door closed as much as possible.
5. Don't waste hot water if you heat it electrically.
6. Operate your electric range as efficiently as possible. Cook whole meals in the thrift cooker or oven.
7. Turn off fans when you leave the room.
8. Discontinue garden lighting and night badminton games.

Edwards Wins Three Events In Boat Races

Florida Sensation Takes Spill While Leading Fourth Contest.

Stop Mabry Edwards!
That's the new cry in the boat racing world. The sensational 20-year-old driver from Jacksonville, Fla., again made a show of the field in the second program of the season at Jackson Lake yesterday before a roaring crowd of approximately 4,000.
Edwards, who won four first places in the first program, came back yesterday with three firsts and was leading in the only other event he entered until his boat took a spectacular spill in the Class F competition.
It was a most unusual and breathtaking spill. When the craft came careening off the bank and landed on the gas tank. When the boat capsized, Mabry stuck his head through the deck and held the boat above the water until help arrived.
The Florida demon drove borrowed boats in winning three firsts. He drove racers owned by Roy Reeves and Louis Trotzier. Trotzier, the veteran Atlantian, incidentally had the fastest time of the day when he negotiated the second lap in two minutes, 39 4-5 seconds.
The next program will be staged July 6.

Dixie Sports Huddle

By ROMNEY WHEELER, Associated Press Writer.
When a surgeon operates on a football player, it's usually to patch him up so he can do and lie again for dear old Siwash.
... Comes now Georgia Tech with a man-bites-dog affair—an operation to deprive Coach Bill Alexander of a prize wingback.
The athlete, Bobby Fair, junior punter, is figuring he was due for the draft, he tried to enlist in the Naval Air Corps, was turned down because of a football-mashed nose. ... Yesterday the surgeons fixed him up so he can meet the right physical test.

HIT BITS — Opportunity is where you find it. ... A Moultrie (Ga.) home-owner found two trees infested with catapwa worms, sold $10-worth to fishermen for bait. ... Talk about enthusiasm, Tennessee anglers have it. Scores of them turned out at midnight to get an early start in the 1941 Norris Lake fishing rodeo. ... Add name oddities: An umpire named Kaspur Rasbury is working in the Appalachian League. ... Without squawks.

PEOPLE—Eddie Hoffman was traded by Durham (N. C.) to Reading (Pa.) with promise he was a deadly slugger. ... So Eddie, forthwith, went to the plate 24 times before getting a hit. ... Moultrie (Ga.) released Carmen Desprez because he couldn't hit. ... So he signed with Mt. Airy (N. C.), where he's pounding a .478 average. ... Good news from room 403, Columbus (Ga.) City hospital. ... The doctors say they won't have to amputate that injured leg of Felton Gatlin, former Ledger-Enquirer sports editor.

SUCCESS DEPT.—Don't ever accuse Erl Roman, Miami Herald fishing editor, of being a type-writer angler. ... Last week he went deep sea fishing off Cat Cay, Bahamas, came home with a 428-pound bluefin tuna. ... Could you do as well? ... Back pat note: Hal Allen for his corking new sports column, Allen's Angle, in the Macon Telegraph. ... Some people are just born lucky. ... Mr. and Mrs. Joe Correll, of Raleigh (N. C.) caught 153 porgies, croakers and mullet off Cape Lookout. ... then on the way home they ran into a school of bonita, caught 32 in an hour.

WEATHER ADVISORY—Johnny Bulla is telling home folks not to waver much on his chances in the United States open golf tournament. ... Says he's been playing too many exhibitions and his game has suffered.

No Justice

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 1.—It beats the Dutch how Manager Paul Richards is blamed when anything goes wrong. Can't Paul Richards ever be right? I will never become reconciled to an official Southern League decision involving the Atlanta baseball club and blaming Paul Richards for the travesty Knoxville made of the second game of the Memorial Day double-header.
I have a quaint notion about the fitness of things and believe in fair dealing. For this reason, I would like to know why Paul Richards was fined $100 and charged with "inciting a riot" during a Men's Night game a year ago, and yet the Knoxville club breaks all the set rules of baseball pertaining to stalling and making a mockery of the game and is merely reprimanded.
It is not necessary to point out that the fans are baffled by such league action. Who isn't baffled?
I refuse to accept this latest decision, even if it stands forever, because I think it is as wrong as a decision could be and is a definite affront to that group of fans who paid to see baseball and deserve some consideration in the matter.

Paul Richards was fined $100 for fighting for his rights in a ball game. Knoxville clearly and flagrantly flouted the rules of the national pastime, but there was no fine and no action by the umpires. What has happened to justice?
I am convinced that the Southern League took the easy way out and masked its action with generalities about "Richards starting it."
Richards got a "strawberry" sliding back into third base on the "play that started it." You don't draw blood when you aren't trying.

Recognition

I wouldn't believe my own ears Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park when Paul Richards, racing in from left field after making a couple of fine plays, was given a rousing round of applause by the fans.

I couldn't believe it, so I asked Buck Linton, veteran telegraph operator, what all the cheering was about, and he said they were giving Old Slug a hand.

Imagine that!
Paul's done some magnificent catching. He has played first base as well as the man for whom he was subbing. He has done a neat job at second and third.

But he finally had to go to the outfield and look like a right-handed Sammy Mayer before the fans at long last decided he had something on the ball as a utility player. The mere fact that Richards has won a pennant and is hot on the trail of another is nothing to cheer about, of course. He is just a h—ll of a manager, to boot.

The point is that if the league is going to continue its persecution of Paul Richards, I think it is high time that the Atlanta fans got on his side, as evidently they were on Saturday.
Maybe Richards has cussed a few Southern League umpires in his time. I don't blame him. I have done the same thing and used probably the same language.

I often think of Cliff Wheatley's old standing line about umpires—"Not dishonest, just blind."
Fans often ask what has happened to the umpiring, and the usual answer they get is: "What umpiring?"

Admits Blame

Since it is a matter of league knowledge that Manager Fred Lindstrom was at fault, according to his own admission, and since there is a definite rule on stalling, the avoidance of fines is remarkable.
A rule is a rule. In scoring, an official scorer is guided by set rules. If a pitcher pitches a whole of a game for three and two-thirds innings and is removed, with his team away out in front, he can't get the victory.
Suppose the official scorer should say, "Oh, what's a rule? The boy deserves the victory and I'll give it to him."

What would happen then? Well, the league would reverse the decision.
The league would reverse any scorer's decision that did not follow the rules.
As I said, a rule is a rule. And a set rule in baseball was not made to be broken. Stalling rules were made for the fans' protection.
As Earl Mann said in his letter to the league president, what is the use of having a rule if it isn't enforced?

Jockey Counts

I don't mean to be pointing, but what jockey is going to ride Whirlaway in the Belmont race this Saturday? Not Eddie Arcaro? Yes, sure enough, it's Eddie Arcaro.
If memory serves me right, one of our noted horse experts recently said jockeys really didn't matter with Whirlaway; he was just a doggone good horse.

That may be so. But in winning the Derby and the Preakness, after looking pretty miserable prior to these races, Whirlaway was expertly handled by Eddie Arcaro, who was signed for that purpose.
Then, when Wendall Eads rode Whirlaway to victory in the recent Withers Mile, the experts said, "See, Whirlaway can win with anybody up."
But as Whirlaway goes out to complete the celebrated triple in racing, just anybody won't be riding him. Don't forget that. Eddie Arcaro is going to clamber aboard. And for only the simple reason that a jockey means a heck of a lot in an important race.

George Sargent Opposes Plan To Limit Golf Ball Distance

By AL SHARP.
George Sargent, East Lake pro who won the National Open title in 1909, sees no good reason—well, no reason at all—for the U. S. G. A.'s plan to limit the distance of the golf ball.
"That idea is for the benefit of about 25 pros," Sargent said after being told of the plan. "It won't help a bit, especially when you think about the millions of dubs."
"Take Atlanta's courses right now. They are hard and players are getting a lot of distance. They are pleased about it, too."
The announcement sent out by the national golf governing body did not specify how much distance it will allow a man. "The extent of the limitation will be determined," the statement read, "after further study of tests made on the association's new testing machine."
Sargent thought the U. S. G. A. probably would limit the distance to about 250 yards, enough to reach a tough par 3 with a good drive.
"I think the rules should be left alone," George continued. "Just because a few of the topnotch pros can knock the ball so far that they are using short irons where the course was designed for a brassie shot is no reason to handicap the dubs."
"The dubs pay the freight, and they are the ones who need distance, so why limit their drives. They get a lot of fun out of hitting long drives. I don't think it will help the game a bit. A rule like that drives away players."

Golden Retains Skeet Honors In State Shoot

Youngsters Boardman, Varn, Martin Feature Capitol Club Show.

By MELVIN PAZOL.
W. S. (Bill) Golden, of Columbus, retained his state skeet championship yesterday at the Capitol Gun Club, hitting 147 out of 150 targets with 12-gauge gun. Won the sub-small-bore title, he won Saturday and high over-all honors with 287x300. Golden dominated every division he was eligible to enter except the 20-gauge, which was captured by Clyde King with 98x100.
Ben Smith was runner-up in Class A, besting youthfull Clayton Boardman Jr., of Augusta, 24 to 23, in a shoot-off for the place after each had gotten 14x150. Boardman, who is only 14 years old, captured the junior championship.
The shooting of Boardman and two other youngsters was the featured feature of the shoot. Young Lester Varn Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., only 17 years old, was high man in Class A of both the all-gauge and 20-gauge, but was ineligible for the state title. Varn knocked off 148 of the flying clay pigeons in the all-bore, and hit 98x100 in the small-bore.
ONLY ONE MISS.
After dropping a target in his first 25, he ran four straight and missed only one bird in the last 25 of the all-gauge. At the 100-mark he was up there with 99, along with Golden and Ben Smith. Boardman hit 98 of the first 100, running off three straight after dropping two birds in the first 25. He then ran the next straight to duplicate Varn's feat of breaking more than 100 in a row. Two misses in the last 25 knocked him out of the running.
The youngest shooter who did well for himself was 15-year-old Jack Martin, who captured the state C class title with 141x150. Jack had never shot skeet until Fred Eichen conducted his shooting school here a few weeks ago. This is a pretty good tribute to Jack's ability as a pupil and Eichen's as a teacher.

MRS. WARD WINS.
The state ladies' championship was won by Mrs. Bill Ward with 86x100. Mrs. Ward also took Class D with 130x150. Ladies' winner was Mrs. Erwin Brooks, of Jacksonville, Fla., with 89x100. Winner of B class was B. C. Owens, of Cleveland, Tenn., with 144x150. Joe Daniels, of Coosa, Ga., was runner-up with 143 after a shoot-off against Bob Autrey and Collett Munger. Daniels ran a straight in the extra event.
Runner-up to Young Jack Martin in class C was Gus Ashcraft, with 136x150. Ken Beegle won the state pro title with 146x150. Runner-up to Mrs. Ward in class D was Mrs. Ben Smith. Ben Smith was runner-up to Bill Golden for high-overall honors with 286x300, only one stroke back. The team title was won by the squad of Joe Daniels, Collett Munger, Ken Beegle, Chester Mabry and Erwin Brooks. The grand total was 715x750, average of 145x150 per man.

CLYDE KING COPS.
In the 20-gauge competition, Clyde King was the winner, hitting 122 and a 24 for top honors at 90x100. Ben Smith was runner-up with 95. Bob Autrey, the genial treasurer of the Capitol Gun Club, who ran off the shoot so successfully with the aid of President Jack Tway, was winner in class B of the 20-gauge with 90x100. Collett Munger was runner-up with 82x100. Gus Ashcraft, who won honors in class C with 89x100 and J. W. Estes was runner-up with 87. Other scores in the all-gauge shoot: Jack Boardman, of Augusta, 144x150; Hugh Nunnally, of Harrison, 141; W. B. Maury, of Jacksonville, 142; Chesland, Tenn., 140; Samuel Scott, 138; Jack Tway, 137; Fred Vandergriff, 135; Ralph Buchanan, of Cleveland, 134; Clifford Pearson, Columbus, 132; Paul H. Luttrell, Columbus, 131; Hugo Nunnally, Harrison, 122; Lester Varn Jr., Jacksonville, Fla., 121; Ben Smith, 119; Mrs. C. Mabry, 69x100. Pro Franklin, 142; F. H. Woodcock, 141.

ATLANTIAN NAMED On Tennis Faculty
CLINTON, S. C., June 1.—(P)—The faculty for the 1941 national model tennis clinic of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, at Presbyterian College here June 3-7, was announced today by William C. Luffler, director.
It includes Marvin Greer, professional at the Piedmont Driving Club, Atlanta, Ga.; Bert Boulware, professional at the Davis Island Tennis Club, Tampa, Fla.; and Fred Andrews, professional at the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Tennis Club.
A high spot on the clinic will be an exhibition match between Bobby Riggs, of Presbyterian College, present Wimbledon champion and former national amateur champion, and Don McNeil, of Kenyon College, present national amateur singles champion, Tuesday afternoon.
Homesickness attacks all races, and so far as scientists have investigated, it is not affected by intelligence, education, or culture.

Vols Hit Eight Homers To Set Record in First

Tatum Clouts 3 in Big Attack on Cortes and Ed Nowak.

By JACK TROY.
Constitution Sports Editor.
SULPHUR DELL, NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 1.—Anything can happen when 9,988 fans turn out for a ball game in Nashville. Inspired by the overflow crowd, the second-place Vols broke the team home-run record of the Southern League. Eight of the 15 hits off Rene Cortes and Ed Nowak were circuit clouts as the Vols routed the league-leading Atlanta Crackers, 17 to 4, in the first game of a double-header. The Crackers came back in the afterpiece to win, 3 to 2, behind the brilliant pitching of Ed Heusser.
It was a notable day for the Vols, what with the season's first overflow crowd and an individual as well as a team record performance in the home field.
Tommy Tatum, Vol center fielder, socked three home runs over the left field fence, which is 352 feet from home plate. Only once before had a Southern League player hit as many as two over the fence in one game. It was done by old Nick Culter when he was a Cracker. So Tatum set a new four-bash mark for the Dell.
BROKE OWN RECORD.
The team home-run record which the Vols broke by one home run belonged to Nashville. Seven homers were hit back in 1930 before the screen was erected. Jim Poole, former Cracker, hit 50 home runs for the Vols that year. The home runs today accounted for 14 runs. And the Vols were not choosy. They hit four off Cortes and as many off Nowak. They were just in a super-hitting mood and it probably would have taken a feller to stop them. The Crackers tried two other fellows and it didn't do any good.
There was another league record today. It was for combined home runs by a team. Charlie Glick hit a long one for the Crackers, and so between them the Vols and Crackers clouted nine homers.
Tatum's three and Les Fleming's two led the four-bash attack. Others were hit by Orris Hockett, Gus Dugas and Dickie Culter. The latter's was the first in the Dell and the second in his Vol career. He hit one last year when the Little Rock right fielder fell down.

TWARDY IN FORM.

Leo Twardy sailed along in the first game, having no trouble at all, but it was a different story for the great George Jeffcoat in the second game. The Crackers now

D. B. Thornton Succeeds Old Firm in Building Material Business

Will Continue At Same Place On Decatur St.

D. B. Thornton Takes Over Firm of Cromer & Thornton.

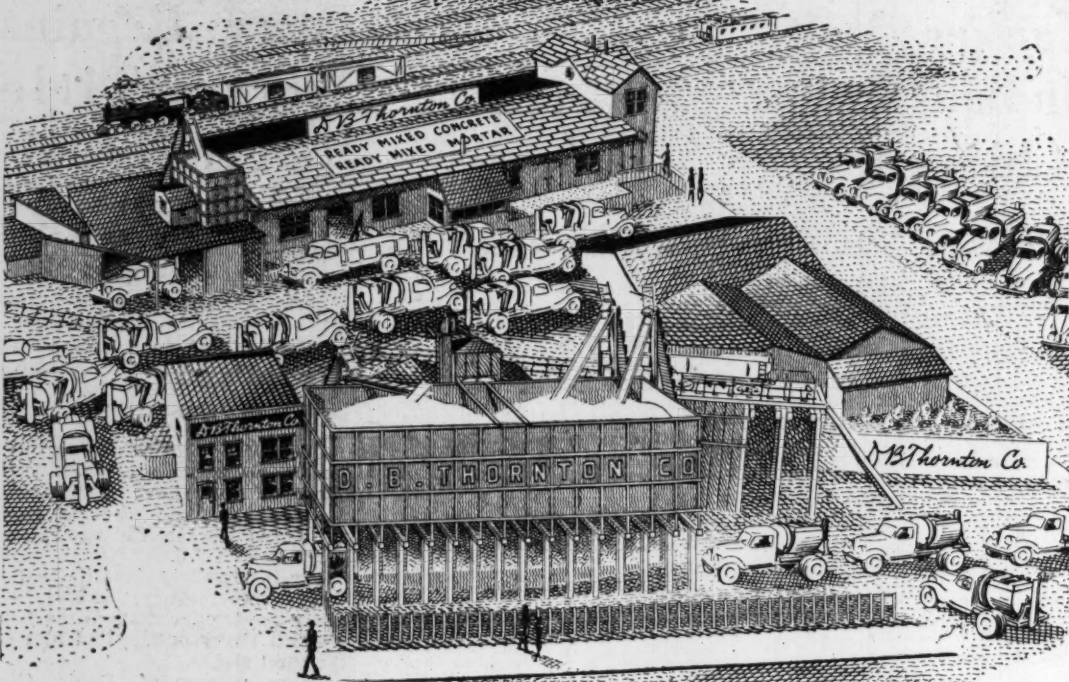

By PRESS HULLSTON.
The firm which has for more than 20 years been operated under the name of Cromer & Thornton, Inc., is now owned and operated under the name of D. B. Thornton Company.

D. B. Thornton has acquired the interest of Charles F. Cromer, and the latter now has no connection with the original company nor with the new Thornton company. For 22 years the original company has been located at 215-229 Decatur street, where large warehouses and offices are maintained. The new Thornton company will continue to occupy the old location.

The Thornton Company, engaged in the same line as the original concern, features its large line of building materials. It maintains ready-mixed concrete plants and one recently erected ready-mixed masonry mortar plant. This type of material is growing in importance and is always ready for use by the builder or contractor, as a set of 24 mixer trucks, which keep the concrete or the mortar thoroughly mixed as it rolls along the delivery point, is ready almost at the moment to serve patrons, even better than ever before.

In addition to operating three mixer plants, the Thornton Company carries at all times a full and complete line of building materials—lime, cement, plaster, sand, crushed stone, and all such materials as are needed in the building line.

The company has just about completed delivery of mortar and cement on some of the biggest construction jobs in this entire area, and has on file many similar orders for future work. For instance, the concern furnished its ready-mixed concrete to the big Coca-Cola plant on Spring street, and to the new Western Electric building on Forrest road. Also for the Herndon and John Hope Homes housing projects. It is now furnishing concrete for Capitol Homes and Henry Grady Homes, much of which has been delivered and used. It is also furnishing its ready-mixed concrete and mortar to the Allen-Wilson Terrell housing project in Decatur.

THORNTON TAKES OVER—D. B. Thornton, of the firm of Cromer & Thornton, acquires the interest of Cromer. Above shows big plant on Decatur street, from where 24 mixer trucks supply builders with various types of building material.

Another big contract will be its furnishing of its ready-mixed mortar to the big federal quarter-master's depot, at Conley, Ga., for the addition in Capitol Homes and for the Swift Packing Company building on Wells street. These are only some of the big jobs the Thornton Company is taking care of these days with its building materials.

Mr. Thornton states that through co-operation with the laboratory of the Georgia Technological school every modern improvement and advantage offered in supplying ready-mixed materials for buildings is afforded. Every move science makes to aid in bettering materials becomes a part and policy of the Thornton Company in offering it to the trade.

Claude Mason Offers the Best Kind of Service

Station Near Court House With Pat Murphy Chief Service Man.

Motorists and truck owners are finding a service at Claude Mason Tire Company, 121 Central avenue, S. W., not excelled by any similar place in the city.

Not only is there found at this popular place of business, located right in the heart of state, county and city government headquarters, a line of Fisk tires—the tires so well known and universally used—but it is a convenient drive-in for gas and oils, for lubrication, for Prest-o-Lite batteries, and for any like service.

However, one of the chief features of the Claude Mason Tire Company is its service department—service on trucks or cars—and service means any kind of repairs needed. As manager of this department one finds W. J. (Pat) Murphy. Pat has been engaged in this type of work for years, and if there is a service or a repair job needed, motorists have found that Pat knows just exactly what he is doing—or having done—when they drive in for a remedy to their car or truck.

A big advantage this concern is giving the public is the fact that it never closes. It gives 24-hour service.

Just now Mr. Mason is much enthused over the Fisk Saffi-Flight tires. Talking to tire buyers and users, he declares there are "two words that are of vital importance to your safety and your pocketbook—Fisk quality. They are of tremendous importance both to you and to the manufacturers. You will understand, therefore, why they protect Fisk quality by road and torture-room testing which goes on continuously—day and night. From rubber plantation to your car—they apply every known scientific method which will maintain and improve the high quality standard of Fisk Saffi-Flight tires."

"You see, to be sure all Fisk tires have the same long life, brute strength and ability to take punishment, a series of testing machines were invented by a man with a fiendish imagination. These machines subject the tires to far worse treatment than they'll ever have to take on the car. Every day, tires are chosen for the test, worn and beaten to exhaustion, then discarded—all to maintain standards of mileage, blowout protection and quality."

"Men who know how to build Fisk tires are craftsmen. But craftsmen must have quality materials to work with. Fisk supplies wonderful rubber... lively... strong... pure and clean... plus the pick of the cotton crop from the south... long staple... smooth... heat resistant and of amazing tensile strength. Some tires are built with rayon. Rayon is the most heat resistant material that ever formed the body of a tire."

Pat Murphy.

Genuine Parts Company Featuring New Auto Polish

The Genuine Parts Company, on West Peachtree street, is now featuring an automobile polish which they claim does what a polish is supposed to do.

Ever since the motoring public became "car beautiful conscious" they have paid out thousands of dollars for various types of polishes endeavoring to find one that would do all that is claimed of them. Service departments and service stations have always been on the alert to discover a product that would give the car owner complete satisfaction. They have used a lot of good polishes. Some did what was claimed of them—almost.

Most any polish, regardless of make or price, will put a shine on your car finish. But that is not all that a polish should do to be a good polish. A good polish will give you the desired "shine," will last longer than a week or two, will not harm the paint, will not rain-spot, and is easy to apply.

Genuine Parts Company have handled almost every type and brand of popular automobile polishes, but it was not until they had seen the work of Mac's supergloss that they felt that they had at last found a polish that would do everything a polish job is supposed to do. Several of the larger super service stations used some of it and they too discovered that at last there was a polish on the market which had long been desired.

Mac's supergloss is termed the "new champion of auto polishes," because of its speed—lasting beauty, and ease of application. It cleans and polishes in one operation. The luster obtained with this polish lasts for several weeks and is not impaired by washing the car. Skilled polishers prefer Mac's supergloss because of its speed and outstanding luster. The amateur polisher prefers Mac's supergloss because it is the one polish which requires no skill or "tricks of the trade." Anyone can accomplish a perfect job with this polish.

Don't wax it—Mac's it. Mac's-it is a superglaze that contains synthetic resins that harden the finish of lacquer and enamels. This accounts for its durability and beauty. A Mac's-it job lasts from six months to a year and is a big saving in labor over wax jobs. Its ease of application and long life makes it a most economical product.

Regardless of what polish motorists have been using or having applied, they will discover after one application of Mac's supergloss and Mac's-it superglaze that they have at last found the polish for their automobile and pocket-book.

DON'T WAX IT—MAC'S IT—termed "New Champion of Auto Polishes." Secured through Genuine Parts Company. Speed, lasting beauty and easy of application is claimed for it.

Crichton Stresses Training; New Classes June 9-16

Entering upon its 56th year of service, the Crichton's Business College again calls to the attention of those who are about to launch upon a business career the necessity of proper training. During the last few months tremendous changes have come about in the great realm of business. Unparalleled opportunities are presented to those who are prepared for the jobs which are now developing. Our government's preparedness program demands methods of increasing speed and efficiency, definite skills and specialized preparedness of the highest type. Every activity of the Crichton's Business College is directed toward this thorough, solid preparation for a business career to prepare young people for positions of trust, responsibility, and leadership in their chosen careers in the business world, either private or government business.

Assist. Preparedness. Last January Crichton's was awarded a United States Army Air Corps contract to train selected members of the 30th Reconnaissance Squadron in typing and allied subjects. These men come from Candler Field each day for classes at the school, during regular sessions. The faculty of Crichton's is composed of eight full-time teachers who have been selected not only for their academic training and ability, but also for their actual experience in the business world. Both class and individual instruction is offered.

Crichton's maintains a free placement bureau for the benefit of graduates and alumni who have completed their courses and the present crisis is demanding far more finished students than can be supplied at present.

All the regular courses carry the life-time scholarship which means a student may return to the school at any time without further charge. To keep up speed or review any subjects previously taken. And Crichton's will again assist the student to find employment the same as when the course was completed.

Crichton's is fully accredited by the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools and all students are thereby assured they will receive training which is recognized and recommended by the highest accrediting agency in the field. Crichton's is the only school in Atlanta accredited by the National Association.

Students wishing to enter Crichton's who have had previous commercial training in high school, college, or private schools, will be given credit for the work they have already had and an allowance on tuition prices will be made. The school is open all year and students may enroll any Monday.

The school's officials extend a cordial invitation to young men and women of ambition, vision, and purpose who aspire to the major opportunities in business, the professions, our government civil service, to avail themselves of its courses of training as entrance into any field for which they have talent or capacity, or in which they are interested. Literature will be sent without expense or obligation to those calling the school. A personal consultation is advised either in the school's office or in the applicant's home when it can be arranged.

Of Berkeley Pump Lines

The Berkeley Pump Corporation is originally a California corporation, located in Berkeley, Cal. The Berkeley factory has been making and designing jet pumps for a great many years. In fact, the jet idea was entirely developed on the Pacific coast, where water for irrigation purposes is quite a necessity.

Realizing that the south is the No. 1 economic opportunity, this company decided some three years ago to open up the southeastern territory, at which time the jet pump was practically unknown in the southeast.

The fact that this pump has only one moving part took hold with the buying public to such an extent that steady increases were made in facilities for serving the southeastern trade.

By March, 1939, the business had developed to such a point that a branch factory assembly plant was opened in Atlanta. A year later, in March, 1940, business had grown to such an extent that increased facilities were necessary and the present location, 556 Tift avenue, S. W., was purchased, where only assembly was attempted.

In March, 1941, a new shallow well line was added, having special features. The public acceptance of this line has been so great as to require additional expansion.

Three years ago the W. D. Alexander Company, who are state distributors on G. E. refrigerators, ranges and all other electrical appliances manufactured by the G. E. Company, took on the Berkeley pump line, distributing through their many high-class dealers. Business has grown steadily until.

There is also a complete line of commercial refrigeration equipment, including storage cabinets, display cases, milk coolers, water coolers, room coolers, ice makers, beverage coolers, etc.

The fact that the pump has only one moving part, which is above ground, as well as high-quality manufacturing and design, has made it one of the leading pumps sold in the southeast today.

As stated, the W. D. Alexander Company distributes in Georgia (with the exception of a small corner of the northwest portion) the most complete line of modern electric sinks, garbage disposal units and steel cabinets, and everything to make up the streamlined modern type of electric kitchen.

Churches Join 21 Arguments U. S. O. Appeal, Are Made for Urge Support Amendment 21

Atlanta Ministers Explain Program at Sunday Services.

As part of the nation-wide program to provide funds for community centers and wholesome recreational activities for service men on leave, "U. S. O. Sunday" was observed yesterday in Atlanta churches of all denominations.

At either the morning or night services, ministers explained the purpose of the United Service Organization appeal and urged their congregations to respond wholeheartedly in the campaign which gets under way tomorrow. The church's responsibility for this phase of the national defense effort was the keynote of most sermons delivered on the U. S. O. topic.

Turner Urges Support.
Dr. Herman L. Turner, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian, and chairman of the citizens service center committee which sponsored the establishment of the temporary quarters at Peachtree and Walton streets, devoted his entire sermon at the morning service to an appeal for co-operation and support in the program.

Taking as his text the question, "Is the Young Man Safe?", Dr. Turner said the community has the responsibility of protecting and bolstering the morale on the home front. Guns, airplanes and other implements of war will fail unless we have men of high morale to handle them. He said the U. S. O. appeal is "not a question of charity, but a privilege."

Knight Cites Obligations.
Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor of the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist church, and president of the Christian Council, pointed out that the government expects to furnish the community buildings, camps, bases and defense industries and "it is up to the churches to help maintain them." He pointed out the moral dangers facing young men away from home seeking amusement and entertainment while off duty.

Dr. E. C. Few, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church, said the U. S. O. campaign is an opportunity for every friend of democracy to have a practical and effective share in keeping our soldiers physically fit and spiritually sound.

Newton Sees "Opportunity."
Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church, said the U. S. O. campaign is an opportunity for every friend of democracy to have a practical and effective share in keeping our soldiers physically fit and spiritually sound.

Appeal Dramatized
At a meeting of the Christian Council today, it was expected the U. S. O. program again will be discussed and plans made for emphasizing it in churches throughout the campaign.

Although the actual solicitation of subscriptions for the service fund will not get under way until tomorrow, the campaign will get a preliminary "send-off" today when Naval fliers from the base at old Camp Gordon will move over the city and suburbs to dramatize the appeal. Twelve planes will take part in the flight, under the leadership of Lieutenant Commander W. D. Harrigan.

MATRONS ARE NAMED TO AID PROGRAM
Mrs. Howard See, president of the Y. W. C. A. and division leader of the United Service Organization has named the following group of Atlanta matrons to assist her in the U. S. O. campaign:

Mrs. Everard Richardson, Mrs. George Beattie, Mrs. Hugh McMillan, Mrs. Emmett Quinn, Mrs. Roy Booker, Mrs. J. B. Suttles, Mrs. Luther Rosser, Mrs. Frank Henry, Mrs. Fletcher Woodcock, Mrs. Bond Almond, Mrs. Carl Dodd and Mrs. Dan Clark.

Mrs. Morris Hirsch, president of the Federation of Jewish Welfare Organizations, has appointed outstanding leaders as captains of her U. S. O. divisions. They are: Mrs. Herman Kuhlman, and Mrs. Donald Oberdorfer from the Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Leon Frishin, and Mrs. Joseph Guzy from the Service Guild; Mrs. Jake Abelson and Mrs. David Levin from the Senior Hadassah; Miss Sarah Rice from the Junior Hadassah; Mrs. Charles Held from the Temple Sisterhood; Mrs. Nathan Mazier from the Shearith Israel Sisterhood and Mrs. Simon Bressler from the A. A. Sisterhood.

Mrs. Philip Graves is chairman of the woman's division of the campaign organization, and Mrs. Francis Dwyer is division aide. Other leaders who are forming teams include: Miss Mae Haverty, Mrs. Emerson Gardner, Mrs. Paul Hultish, Mrs. Howard Patillo, Mrs. D. W. Stevens, Mrs. Willis Milner Jr., and Mrs. M. R. Woodall.

The Atlanta Pilots Club is serving as a speakers bureau for the woman's division, under the leadership of Miss Tommie Parrish.

Hugh Walpole, Writer, Dies At Age of 57

British Novelist Wrote Almost a Book a Year Since He Was 25.

LONDON, June 1. — (AP) — Sir Hugh Walpole, the British novelist who wrote almost a book a year from the age of 25, died of a heart attack early today. He was 57. He had been ill for a week at his Lakeland home, Brackenburn, near Keswick in the Cumberland mountains.

He was known in the States not only by his "Jeremy" books and his "Herries" saga but for frequent lectures, visits and a stay on the west coast.

In his novel "Roman Fountain," published last year, Walpole recalled on occasion when Adolf Hitler wept. He met Hitler in Bayreuth in 1924 soon after Hitler had served a prison sentence for the Munich Beer Cellar Putsch and had written "Mein Kampf."

"I remember he cried," wrote Walpole. "And at that I felt his passion for Germany so sincere it seemed to burn through his ugly boots into the ground and that I liked him and thought him in every way tenth rate."

He wrote almost to the end. One of his main contributions was to the regular book review section of a London newspaper.

It was an example of his dislike for inactivity and his joy in literary labor which he found comparatively easy.

"I write as I breathe," he once remarked. And again, "I never had any impulse but one, to put people down in words as I see them."

Todd Death Probe Will End Today

An inquest will be completed this morning into the death of Charles E. Todd, 20, watchmaker's apprentice, whose body was found Saturday, shot through the region of the heart, at the jewelry store on Broad street where he was employed.

The investigation opened Saturday, and over the weekend Mrs. Paul Donehoo, coroner, scouted a dozen or more explanations of the death, which city police marked up as a "suicide."

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, at the chapel of A. C. Hemperley & Sons. The Rev. J. M. Heart will officiate. Burial will be in Hill Crest cemetery.

Axis Shipping Crisis Seen in Vichy's Report

London Sees Meaning in Statement of Lost Tonnage.

LONDON, June 1. — (AP) — The ministry of economic warfare declared tonight that the Axis faces a shipping crisis because of British naval action against French ships in the Mediterranean.

In what the ministry called a "commentary" on Vice Premier Admiral Darlan's recent statement that France had lost 792,000 tons of shipping to the British, the ministry asked:

"Why does the admiral choose this moment to attack? The Axis is facing a shipping crisis."

Since the beginning of the war and up to May 13, the Axis has lost 3,000,000 tons of shipping, the ministry said and "it needs every ship it can lay hands on in an attempt to solve an acute transport problem."

"Our action against the Axis-controlled shipping in the Mediterranean is, from the Axis point of view, a battle comparable to the Battle of the Atlantic," the commentary said.

The British said it was now proven that when Germany wishes she can control every ton of French shipping in Vichy's hands. Hitherto the British "pursued a policy of great restraint and leniency in hope that French shipping would be used only for the needs of unoccupied France."

Soldiers' Reading Will Be Collected

Books and magazines for soldiers! You can do your patriotic bit by aiding the plan of American Legion Post No. 1, to collect reading matter for the boys in Uncle Sam's Army camps. The books and magazines will be collected by trucks of Davidson-Paxon company.

Collecting of material begins today. Persons with reading material they desire to contribute are asked to telephone Walnut 7612 and ask for Telephone Shipping Service. Trucks will be sent out to collect books and magazines anywhere in the Atlanta delivery zone.

The books and magazines will be distributed to libraries at camps in Georgia.

'Singapore Must Stand Ready,' Percival Says

SINGAPORE, June 1. — (AP) — Lieutenant-General Arthur E. Percival, new commander of the British land forces in Malaya, said tonight that though peace still reigns in this part of the empire "we must be ready for any eventualities."

Singapore is so vital to the empire in the East that it was natural that the Malayan garrison should become an "army of the empire," he said in a broadcast.

Landing Party Hinted Aboard Nazi Bismarck

Admiral Says Sinking Frustrated Foe's Designs.

LONDON, June 1.—(AP)—When British torpedoes pounded the German battleship Bismarck to the bottom of the Atlantic Tuesday morning, they "frustrated important enemy designs," First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander said tonight.

It already had been suggested by informed quarters that the Bismarck, with an extraordinary complement of 2,400 men—hundreds more than normal—planned to man captive ships or possibly to set landing parties ashore somewhere.

This postscript to the Bismarck sinking, delivered to the British navy and nation by radio, was believed to be the first such speech ever broadcast by a first lord of the admiralty to the navy. Alexander paid many deep tributes to the fighting men at sea and expressed high hope for victory.

"Off Crete," he said, "the navy has been fighting one of the sternest battles of its history against continuous attacks from the air, with the one thought that we could not let the army down."

"Man for man, we have shown ourselves better than the Germans."

Referring to President Roosevelt's fireside chat of last Tuesday, Alexander asserted that the President made it clear that Adolf Hitler would in no circumstances be permitted to win.

"I believe him," he concluded.

Sebastiani Resignation Is Announced Officially

ROME, June 1.—(AP)—The resignation of Osvaldo Sebastiani as private secretary to Premier Mussolini was announced officially today.

Sebastiani was said to have resigned for "private reasons." It was announced that Mussolini accepted the resignation and showed Sebastiani "his appreciation and satisfaction" for his seven years of service.

The premier appointed Nicola de Cesare, a government official and commander of Rome anti-aircraft forces, as Sebastiani's successor.

British Grant Iraq Armistice; Fighting Ends

Abdul Ilah Returns to Baghdad; Boy King Reported Safe.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 1.—(AP)—All fighting in Iraq between the British and Axis-inspired rebel forces of fugitive Rashid Ali al Gailani ended at 8 a. m. today under terms of an armistice reached yesterday, Iraq sources here announced.

The Iraq regent, Emir Abdul Ilah, who left the country after his government was overthrown by Rashid Ali on April 4, entered Baghdad this morning, an authorized statement said.

Six-year-old King Feisal II was said also to be safe in the Iraq capital. There had been reports that he had been taken away by Rashid when the latter fled to Iran.

Mosul Fields 'Infact' A British radio report said the whereabouts of the child king was unknown after the Iraq legation in Ankara, Turkey, announced he had been moved to Kirkuk.

The British said the Mosul oil fields in the north, which provide oil for the Mediterranean fleet, were "intact." They said further that the governor of Mosul "was opposed to Rashid Ali's gang from the beginning" of the short-lived war that started May 2.

Thus the task of pacifying the middle east state, established under British aegis after the World War, appeared virtually completed.

Return of Prisoners

A middle east command communiqué said the situation in Baghdad itself "remains quiet following our acceptance of the armistice which was asked for by the committee set up to administer Baghdad after the flight of Rashid Ali and his gang."

Under the armistice the British pledged to "abstain from any infringement on Iraq independence and to afford his Royal Highness, the Regent, every assistance in re-establishing a legal government and to assist the Iraq nation to resume a normal and prosperous existence."

The armistice also provided for the return of Iraqi troops to their peacetime pursuits, release of British prisoners of war and internment by the Iraqis of Italian and German prisoners. Reports here said about 500 Axis men were captured.

Iraqi prisoners taken by the British will be handed over to Abdul Ilah.

Italian Relations in Doubt Despite reassuring statements concerning the Mosul fields, military sources indicated the situation there remained unclear. Some German planes were reported still there.

The Italian minister to Baghdad fled to Iran when the rebellion collapsed and the British here assumed that Iraq now would sever diplomatic relations with Italy. The Baghdad regime broke off relations with Berlin after the European conflict began in September, 1939.

Axis East Toll 1,696 Planes, British Report

Say Own Loss Only 260; Bomber Hits Heavy in May.

LONDON, June 1.—(AP)—The British officially announced today they had destroyed 1,696 Axis planes on all Middle East fronts since operations began there last June 11, the day after Italy entered the war. At the same time they lost 260.

The Axis' Middle East losses were probably higher, the British said, since the figure did not include many aircraft "known to have been damaged or destroyed on the ground."

The British also said they had brought down 156 German night bombers in May for a new record.

Three Bombers Downed

They began the month of June by destroying three more German planes early this morning in darkness raids on Liverpool's Merseyside, south Wales and west England.

Bombs caused a number of casualties, including "some people killed," along the Merseyside an official communiqué said, but damage at other points was light.

The previous best months total of night bombers brought down was 87 in April, indicating that defense against this type of attack was steadily improving.

Month's Bag 205.

Last month the British said they brought down a total of 205 German planes over England and the continent against 87 British losses.

The Middle East aerial score in May, officials said, was 260 Axis planes against 62 British which they said was "a superiority of more than four to one."

Chungking Is Battered

By Japanese Bombers

CHUNGKING, June 1.—(AP)—Japanese raiders battered Chungking in the fifth raid of the bombing season after a 15-day lapse today and damaged an American Methodist mission.

The residence of the Rev. W. A. McCurdy, well-known as a guest house for missionary visitors, received damage amounting to $6,500. There were no casualties, however.

The downtown district bore the brunt of the attack. Several fires were started. The raiders encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, but all escaped.

Anzacs Sneer At Parachute Troops' Ability

Gunning and Bombing Planes Are Termed Deciding Factor.

By EDWARD KENNEDY.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 1.—(AP)—Thousands of British and Imperial soldiers and their Greek allies, worn by the strain of 13 days of fierce but unavailing fighting to hold Crete against the most furious attack yet launched by the Nazi air might, were in Egypt tonight.

Crete is lost, but the British, in spite of a specific campaign by the Germans to prevent debarkation, got away from the beleaguered island in large numbers. By Saturday night, 10,000 troops, mostly British, Australian and New Zealanders, had reached Egypt safely, bringing with them a number of Greeks and Crete natives and a number of civilians, including some women who preferred the perilous sea voyage to living in a Nazi-occupied country.

Decided Thursday.

Others, bombed throughout their entire trip from Crete to Africa, have arrived since then. The decision to abandon the fight for the island which the British had felt confident of holding, was made last Thursday afternoon as it became apparent that the German air supremacy there would enable them to land as many troops as they desired and at the same time, bar the British from landing needed reinforcements.

Some of the empire forces, worn by endless hours under fire, were disappointed over the lack of British air strength, but the military morale, generally, remained high.

All agreed that it was bombs and machinegun fire by planes that passed over them almost continuously that spelled defeat for the British and victory for the forces of Hitler.

Contempt for 'Chutists.

Most of the soldiers expressed utter contempt for German parachute troops, thousands of whom they claimed to have killed, and said they could have fought successfully against even greater numbers if the Germans had not gained such complete mastery of the air.

Those who came from the Candia area said that every parachute unit who landed there had been killed.

Unaware of the more serious situation at Crete's capital, Candia, and in the Suda Bay area, these troops from Candia were surprised at the order for their withdrawal.

Successful at Candia.

Virtually all British troops in the Candia area got away safely, but those near Suda Bay did not fare so well. Many of them escaped however, by falling back along the coast to Candia and others made their way over the rugged mountains to islands off the wild south coast.

"Parachutists were nothing," one soldier said, "but dive bombing all day long and continual machinegun fire was terrible."

"We hardly ever saw any of our own fighters. If we had had a few squadrons of them it would have been different."

An RAF spokesman conceded that the Germans had overwhelming superiority in the air, due mainly to the proximity of Nazi bases and the distance from British bases.

Could Not Repeat.

They said, however, that the German air attack on Crete could not be repeated elsewhere in the war arena.

Some additional British fighters, veterans of other encounters and picked for the most hazardous jobs, were landed in the last hours before withdrawal, a spokesman said.

One soldier asserted that the British lost comparatively few men in their retreat and saw voyage to Egypt, although they were bombed without letup.

The Germans, soldiers said, employed a number of new tricks in Crete.

"We saw one batch of parachutists come down and we opened fire on them heavily and thought we had killed them," one soldier said, "but when they landed we found they were dummies to attract our attention while real parachutists were coming down nearby. But we went after the real ones and cleaned them up."

Ask for Mercy.

"Within five minutes they, too, might as well have been dummies for all they were worth to Hitler." Soldiers said that the Nazis don't cry "kamrad" any more as the German prisoners did in the last war.

They all have learned enough English to "ask for mercy" and they usually pull out diaries and show entries to indicate they really are not German Nazis, but Austrians, returning soldiers said.

Such diaries, they said, seem to be an integral part of a paratrooper's equipment.

Pushed From Planes.

One Australian said that the planes that dropped the troops were flying very low and added that "Believe me, they were not jumping, they were being pushed or kicked out by a big bloke in that plane for that purpose."

The soldiers confirmed reports that the Germans landed howitzers and small vehicles by air. After climbing mountains to a height of 7,000 feet, some of the troops were so tired upon boarding vessels that they fell sound asleep immediately, completely disregarding dive-bombers that were attacking them.

Insist Schmeling Killed.

Several of the soldiers insisted that former Heavyweight Champion Max Schmeling was among the parachutists killed, even though the German press has printed a purported interview with Schmeling as a denial of the report he was dead.

The parachutists acted ruthlessly wherever they got control, British troops said.

The Germans dropped leaflets warning the civil population that the death penalty would be imposed on civilians joining in the defense of the island.

At the time the withdrawal was ordered, the soldiers estimated the Germans had succeeded in landing about 30,000 troops.

Hendricks Asks 'Mercy'

For Accused Truck Driver

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—Representative Joe Hendricks, Democrat, Florida, pleaded for leniency today for a truck driver's helper accused of stealing $31 in cash and a $50 watch from the congressman's hotel suite here.

Magistrate Raphael Lorenzo, according to his plea, reduced the petty larceny charge against the defendant, Joseph Lorenzo, 33, to disorderly conduct but sentenced him to six months in jail after he admitted having served a term previously for extortion.

Mrs. Roosevelt Adopts

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has adopted her third refugee child through the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, Inc., it was announced today.

He is Thomas Maloney, three and a half, a British refugee. The other two fostered by the First Lady were a 12-year-old Spanish boy and a 15-year-old Polish girl.

Tedder Named to RAF

Middle East Command

LONDON, June 1.—(AP)—Acting Air Marshal A. W. Tedder was appointed commander-in-chief of the Royal Air Force Middle East command, the air ministry announced tonight.

Tedder succeeds Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur M. Longmore, who was promoted to inspector general of the Royal Air Force.

Tedder has been Longmore's second in command since November. He was chief of the Far East command at Singapore in 1936-38.

N. Y. POPULATION GAINS

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—The population of New York city on April 1, 1940, was 7,454,985, final figures from the 16th decennial census showed today. This was an increase of 524,549, or 7.6 per cent, over the 1930 figure, the Department of Commerce Census Bureau reported.

Morgenthau's Father Urges Aid to Britain

'We Must Not Let the British Down,' He Says.

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—Calling for full aid to Great Britain, Henry Morgenthau Sr. declared today that "one valiant small island stands between the continuance of our civilization and a new dark age in which the Nazis expect to be the masters and hope to make us the slaves."

Morgenthau, former U. S. Ambassador to Turkey and father of the present Secretary of the Treasury, spoke on an "I'm An American" program over the Blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

"We must not let Britain down," he said. "We cannot let her down because a sound instinct of self-preservation compels us to her support. It is our country which will be given the opportunity to prove, in the last resort, the strength and vitality of western civilization."

Questioning whether the United States had undertaken "seriously enough the training period that confronts us," he asserted that the emergency required the "putting into use every ounce of the intelligence, the efficiency and the industrial resources of which this huge, rich country is capable."

Eire Protests Bombing, Asks Nazi Payment

Government Declares Bombs Were of German Origin.

DUBLIN, Eire, June 2, (Monday).—(AP)—The government of Eire officially declared early today that bombs dropped on Dublin Saturday morning, killing at least 27 persons, "were of German origin."

The Eire Charge d'Affaires in Berlin is being directed to protest to Germany against the "violation of Irish territory" and to claim reparation.

27 Killed

The government information bureau officially reported that the four bombs dropped on Dublin early Saturday killed at least 27 people and wounded about 80.

The bureau's statement said that the "government regrets to announce that as a result of bombs dropped on Dublin in the early hours of Saturday morning at least 27 people lost their lives and approximately 80 received injuries."

"Considerable damage to property was caused by a further bomb dropped near Aklow, in County Wicklow, early Sunday morning. No lives were lost but there was some damage to property."

Wants 'Assurances'

The government's official statement follows: "Investigations have shown that the bombs dropped (Saturday) were of German origin and the Charge d'Affaires in Berlin is being directed to protest to the German government against the violation of Irish territory and to claim compensation in reparation for the loss of life and injuries and damage to property."

"He is being further directed to ask for definite assurances that the strictest instructions will be given to prevent the flight of German aircraft over Irish territory and territorial waters."

The search for dead in the Saturday morning bombing continued.

Nazi Invasion Expected

July 1, Analyst Says

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—Johnnie Steele, radio commentator, said today that his arrival from Europe on the Dixie Clipper that "certain members of the British government" expected Great Britain to be invaded July 1.

Steele, who spent several weeks in London, said also that the Portuguese government, fearing German invasion, had evacuated to the Azores its standing army and some official archives.

Must Double Yearly

Output to Win, Says May

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—Stacy May, an official of the Office of Production Management, expressed the view today that defeat of the Axis powers could not be insured unless the United States diverted $40,000,000,000 a year into arms production, a sum double the present schedule of expenditures.

In spending that amount annually for armaments, he added, "we should be doing in proportion to our strength no more than Canada or England or Germany are doing now."

May, who is chief of OPM's Bureau of Research and Statistics, spoke over the Mutual Broadcasting System as part of a Northwestern University program.

Germans Feint At London, Hit In Northwest

Town Heavily Bombed; Capital Hears First Alarm Since May 16.

LONDON, June 2, (Monday).—

(AP)—German raiders roaring over in waves subjected a northwest town to its worst attack in months early today, causing a number of casualties and heavy business and residential property damage.

Four shelters and several houses in a suburban district of the town also were hit hard and it was believed a number of persons were buried in the debris.

German planes were over London for about two hours early, but there were no bombs dropped.

The capital was under its first alarm since May 16. The last bombs were dropped on London May 11 when the city was raked by incendiaries in a firebomb.

There was sharp but sporadic gunfire during the alert, and some planes were heard.

In the northwest town, where the Germans apparently concentrated their forces in a sudden spurt of raiding, one fireman was killed and others were injured when caught under a falling roof.

A warden also was killed in an adjacent street. Incendiary bombs fell around a hospital, causing a number of fires which nurses succeeded in partially extinguishing. The patients were in a shelter.

The Best of Graduation Gifts

Looking around him this summer, the June graduate will see hundreds of thousands of free Americans scattering to the four corners of this great country, vacation bound. Back from their holidays, hundreds of thousands of families will move into new homes, gleaming with sparkling paint, fitted with every modern convenience. In the autumn the schools will reopen and millions of warmly dressed and well-fed children will troop to them with no fear of oppression to trouble their hearts. The American way of life will move forward. Times may threaten to grow dark, but America has survived dark times before, to stand as the leading democracy of the world. The most precious gift which a parent may give, this June, to a graduating son or daughter will be the gift of endurance, of hope, of faith, and the unshakable will to work for a future even more glorious than our triumphant past.

FOR 74 YEARS AN INTEGRAL PART OF ATLANTA'S PROGRESS

RICH'S

Looking and feeling fresh and alert is important for summer charm such as that of Mary Howard, now being featured in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Billy the Kid." The quick pick-up masque mentioned in the article below will help you in keeping your own face alert at the beginning or the end of the day.

Masque Is Hot Weather Pick-Up

By Winifred Ware.

When thermometers get up in the nineties everyone can do with a little facial pick-up. After a hot day it seems like we don't have it any of the "stuff" that's needed to be attractive.

I know of a pick-up masque which was made for just such a need. It's pretty to look at and pleasant to use . . . which is important when everything else seems unpleasant. It's a fluffy, pink stuff, not at all sticky or heavy. As you smooth it on your freshly cleaned face it actually cools.

In a jiffy your face is covered and you can lie down and relax. To try to do this, for it is one of the important things after a tiring day. A few minutes of complete relaxation can do you as much good as a world of fussing around with hair and make-up . . . for after all getting your best nature forward contributes more toward your being attractive than anything else.

Using the masque helps you to relax completely. By making you sit frowning, squinting, or pulling down the corners of your mouth, it makes you forget your reasons for doing such things.

Just lie there until this masque dries, then remove it. You don't know what a relaxing effect it can have on your whole body until you have tried it. See how stimulated and fresh your skin feels, how wide awake you are. You're ready to start in with your make-up with renewed enthusiasm for living . . . and you find that your skin is ready to receive it with increased aptitude.

I'll be glad to tell you where to get this luscious pink masque and how much it costs if you call me at Walnut 6565 or write me in care of The Atlanta Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Doctor's Care May Reduce Scarring

By Dr. William Brady.

Since formation of scar is inevitable in the healing of burn, wound, boil, sore or injury, and the amount of scarring and disfigurement depends on the treatment, it is essential to have the most skillful surgical care available from the earliest possible moment. In some instances such care may not be immediately available, but others the importance of skilled care is not realized. In still others the severity of the injury or the amount of functioning tissue destroyed may be so great that tending or repair requires so much non-functioning scar tissue that excessive scarring and subsequent distortion or disfigurement or crippling from shrinkage or contraction of the scar tissue is unavoidable.

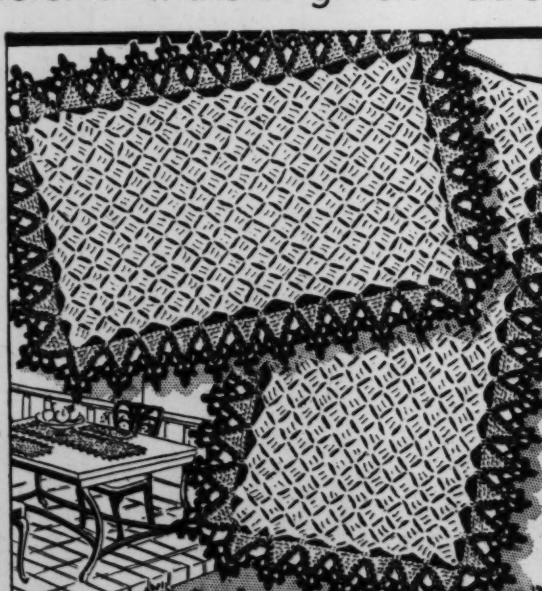

Scar tissue, the cement, glue or plaster used in the mending of repair of injuries, is a dense, inelastic, poorly nourished (because not well supplied with blood) material, of much the same character no matter what tissue or structure or organ it mends. As it grows older it tends to shrink and in shrinking or contracting it may cause not only distortion or deformity but interference with functioning of tissues or organs involved. For instance, scars in the abdomen (cavity, not the belly or front abdominal wall), from mending or repair or inflammations such as localized peritonitis, appendicitis, salpingitis in women, or operative wounds, are called "adhesions" because they glue together adjacent surfaces which normally are movable.

In some persons there seems to be a tendency toward overgrowth of scar and such hypertrophic scar is called keloid from a Greek term meaning claw, which was suggested, perhaps, because ridges running off from the body of the scar into the surrounding skin.

sometimes give it the appearance of a claw, and there may be more or less sensation as though a claw were grasping the skin). Keloids may result from even trifling wounds or sores such as insect bites, needle punctures, slight burns, or from a blister on the chest from mustard or other counter-irritant applied as a remedy. X-ray treatment in the hands of a physician experienced in use of X-ray gives the most satisfactory results in treatment of keloid. Sometimes radical excision and skin graft to fill the defect may be successful, but the tendency of keloid to return must be considered when deciding on the method of treatment. Radium treatment is as valuable or even preferable to X-ray in certain cases.

Studio Buys Out Rights To "Nick and Nora" Of "Thin Man" Fame

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, June 1.—Frances Farmer, the gal who didn't like Hollywood—and said so—has decided to stay—and like it. She will co-star with Preston Foster in "Prison Widows," a story of the women who live outside prison walls because the men they love are inside them. This yarn is too, too familiar and has been told three times in the last 12 months. But maybe Paramount has a new angle. Anyway, I'm glad Miss Farmer is remaining in pictures. She is a good actress—and beautiful.

Walter Huston's writer son, John, has joined the director ranks. His first assignment is a remake of Dashiell Hammett's "The Maltese Falcon." It has a new title, "Knight of Malta," with Mary Astor getting a leading role with George Raft. . . . Talking of Hammett, his Nora and Nick characters in the "Thin Man" series have been sold to Metro for $50,000 outright, and from now on, the studio can continue to star William Powell and Myrna Loy without further payment to the author.

Bette Davis invested $8,000 in a local operetta starring her protégée, Pamela Caveness. Which is my idea of a fairy godmother. Unfortunately, the production did not return Bette her money. . . . I wonder why they changed the title of "The Gentle People" to "Out of the Fog"? The former had been well publicized because of the play from which it was taken. . . . James Cagney is now up for the title role in "Captain Horatio Hornblower" with Rosalind Russell as Lady Barbara. If these two plays capture, there should be a lot of fun on the height question. Roz is very tall. Jimmy, very short. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Reagan (Jane Wyman) have the leads in "Back-ground to Danger" from the Eric Ambler novel.

Ann Sothern helps the defense effort with "Comin' At You" for Metro. The locale is a shipyard. James Craig, the handsome doctor of "Kitty Foyle," continues his film climb with a starring assignment in "Unexpected Uncle." Capable Actress Ellen Drew gets a respite from horse operas with the lead opposite William Holden in "The Remarkable Andrew." "Citizen Kane" is not doing as well as expected at the El Capitan theater here. I hope this is not a straw blowing in the wind of non-success. The picture is new and refreshing, and deserves to be seen.

Lana Turner will have co-star billing with Clark Gable in "Honky Tonk." Which is coming a long way from that ice-cream parlor in which Lana was discovered for the movies. . . . After all these years, Jeanette MacDonald has succeeded in having Husband Gene Raymond in one of her films. Gene plays Kenneth Wayne, the soldier, in "Smilin' Through," Jeanette's latest musical.

MY DAY: Saving Gas Might Reduce Accidents

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Friday.—We arrived here last night just fifteen minutes after my husband reached home, which shows that there are some advantages to flying, for I left Washington three hours later than he did. He insists, however, that he accomplished a great deal more work on the way, and I haven't a doubt that's true.

Miss Thompson and I motored up from La Guardia Field, and it was quite evident that a holiday crowd was wending its way up the parkway. We passed one accident, but no one seemed to be seriously hurt. On the whole, I thought the driving was fairly careful, though a few cars whizzed past me at a pretty rapid rate of speed.

I see that Secretary Ickes is suggesting that we have gasless Sundays and universal daylight saving, thereby saving power. The gasless Sunday and less rapid driving might not only save gas and rubber, but a considerable number of human lives. The power, however, if it means fewer lights, will be hard on me, because I have acquired the bad habit of working late at night. When I don't do that, the temptation to read is hard to resist.

A young crescent moon added to the beauty of our drive last night. Though there was no such heavy scent of honeysuckle as greeted us along the Virginia roads last week, the air was filled of the drive. Today is a beautiful day, so much cooler than Washington that I am almost chilly.

This is not just a holiday, but a day on which we pay particular honor to those who died serving their country in the years gone by. The events of the present time give the day a special significance.

I have often said that I wished we could celebrate on this day, not only our military heroes, but those who served their country in other ways during times of peace. It is, perhaps, harder to keep the spirit of self-sacrifice alive when no great crisis confronts us. A crisis is with us again, however, and I feel sure that all our people will face inconveniences and even sacrifices with a steadfast spirit.

It is often much harder to live than to die, but if you must voluntarily risk death, the cause is important. I do not feel that the sacrifice of those who fought for democracy and believed they would end war in 1918 was in vain. What they stood for awakened in a great many people a new conscience about the meaning of democracy.

They did not, however, reach enough people to prevent the recurrence of some of the things which they hope to eliminate from the world. I hope that the acceptance of responsibility by more people may, perhaps, achieve the ultimate aim for which many lives have been given in the past.

Secret Marriage Unwise

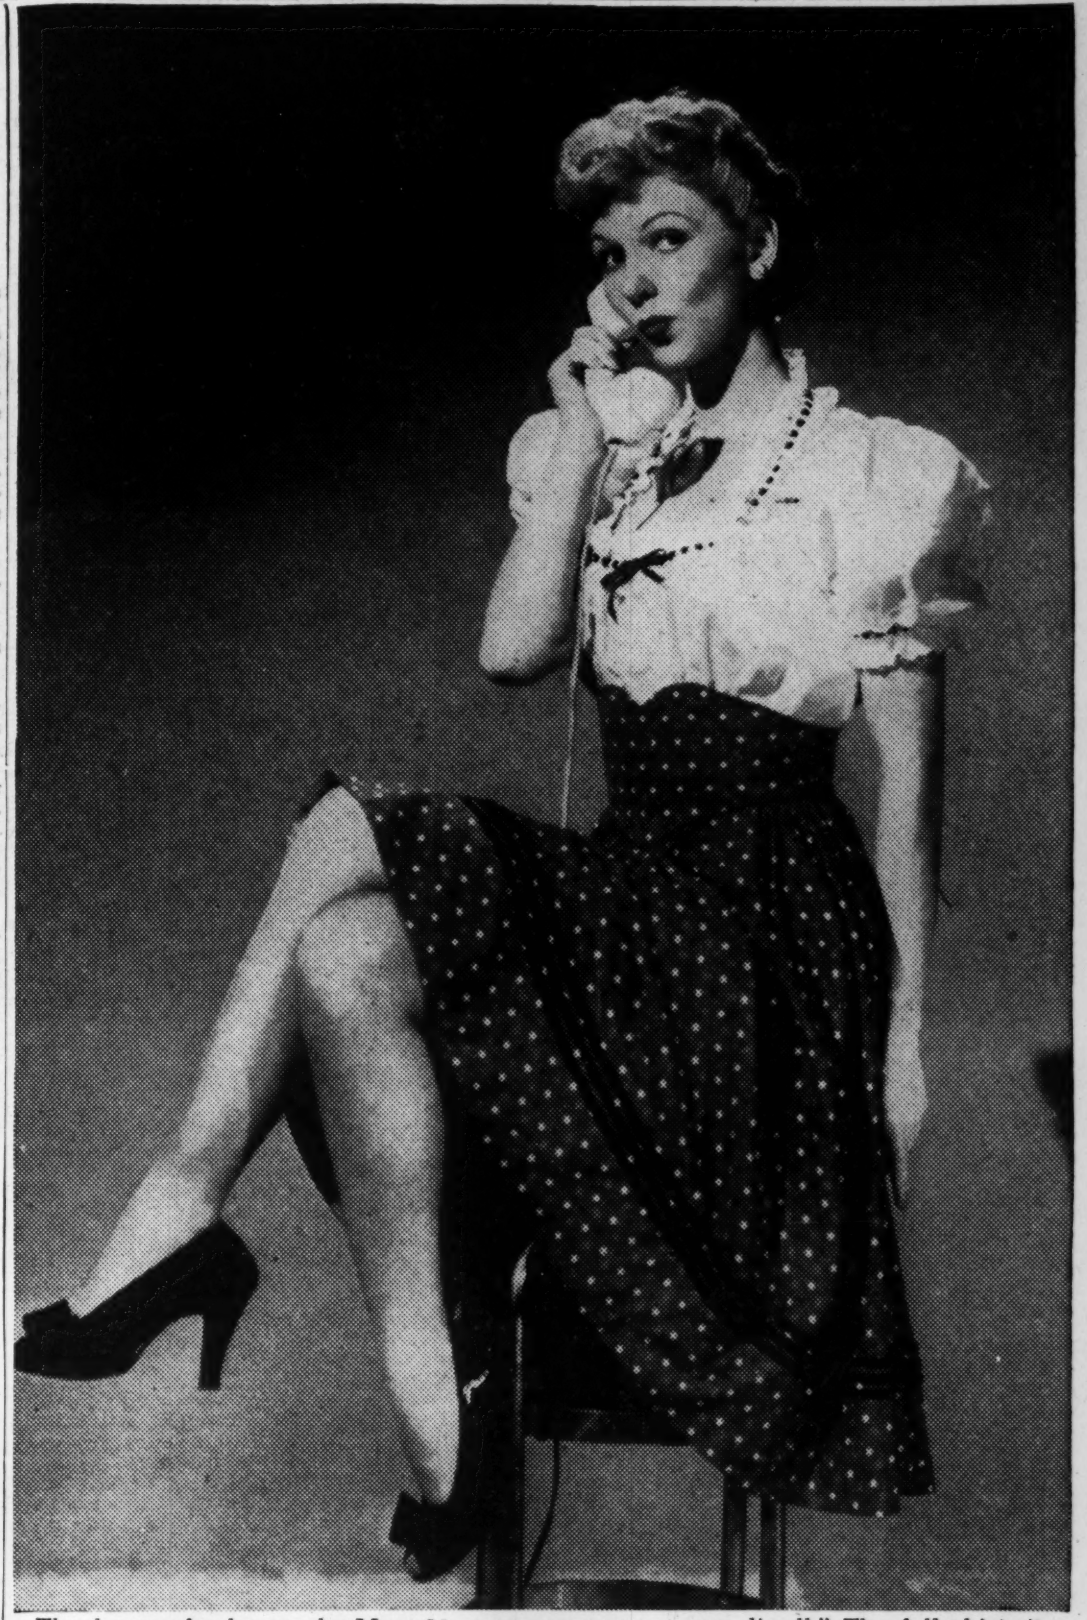

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I am engaged to a boy. He has said that he loves me, and I think lots of him. He wants me to marry him secretly for a while. His people do not know that he goes with me and they do not like me. We quarrel a lot now. Do you think we should marry now, or wait until he is making more money before we start a home?

Don't you think that if he really loved me, he would want his people to know we were going together and that we had planned to marry? My family likes him and want us to marry. Please help me.

Puzzled Girl.
Dear Puzzled Girl: My advice to you is to forget this boy at once and get yourself another beau. If a boy wants a girl to marry him, he will want it known to the world and to be open and above board. No secret marriage is advisable. In the first place, if he loved you and wanted to marry you, he would want his people to know you. If you have started quarrelling that is another sign that everything is not as it should be. Of course, I know lovers quarrel, but I imagine the quarrels you to have are a bit different. He is not showing very much respect for you to want you to marry secretly, knowing that his parents do not approve of you. Before you marry him, get the approval of his family and have like you or not, if they approve of the wedding you will stand a far better chance for happiness. Discuss the matter with him and tell him that you want to meet his people. Also tell him that you do not and will not marry him secretly, that you want a real wedding, regardless of how small it may be.

GOSSIP CAUSES UNCERTAINTY
Dear Dixie: I am very much in love with a boy who tells me he loves me too. Since he lives in a distant town, I do not get to see him but once a month and sometimes not that often. He is very jealous of me and does not want me to go with other boys. He promises me he would not go with other girls if I would not go with other boys. I have kept my promise, but I hear he goes with girls in his town. Should I believe these rumors or

The demure frock worn by Mary Martin is called "the date dirndl." The full skirt, the frothy ruffle, and the black ribbon all give it that much sought-after-little-girl look.

Demure Dirndl Is Ideal for Any Date

Going places? Then you will want this appealing frock, with its winsome, quaint, feminine neckline, its smooth torso waistline and flaring skirt. Originally designed for Mary Martin, Paramount's enchanting comedienne, it is a one-piece dress adapted from the very popular peasant blouse and full skirt costume. Dressed up with a frothy white ruffle demurely run with velvet ribbon, it has loads of that girlish charm which is so desirable in this modern age of fashion. Pattern No. 1405 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 1 3/4 yards of 35-inch fabric for the blouse and sleeves portion, 3 2/3 yards for the skirt. In monotone with long skirt, 6 3/4 yards. Neckline and sleeves require 7 yards eyelet embroidery beading insertion with 2 1/4 yards ribbon. Pattern No. 140 can be purchased for 15 cents. Please remit in coins or stamps (coins preferred), giving your name, address, pattern number and size. National Nutrition Program Has Begun

By Ida Jean Kain.

The head of our house, who thinks I am slightly "tetchy" on the subject of nutrition, said once that if writing were in his line he would tear off 5,000 words on "I Married a Dietitian."

He insists that it is vitamin week all year around at our house. "First we have watercress, then dandelion greens or carrots, and vitamin B bread, and every Thursday we have liver. I'll bet we get enough vitamins for our whole block!"

It has been estimated that two-thirds of the nation do not receive enough of these essential food elements. Here is the list of foods every member of your family needs every day: One green leafy or yellow vegetable plus dairy products for vitamin A; enriched bread (home cooked bread should be made with vitamin B flour, or with yeast so enriched), whole grain cereals and meat, for vitamin B1; citrus fruit or its juice, or tomatoes and a green salad for adequate vitamin C; meat, particularly the organs, milk and eggs to provide vitamin B2, or riboflavin. Sunshine affords vitamin D but in addition to sun, children and expectant mothers should have cod liver oil. It is very important to cook the vegetables so as to preserve the vitamins. Soda is a destructive factor and should never be added. The vegetables should be started in the minimum amount of boiling water, cooked quickly in a covered pan, and any liquids from the vegetables—whether fresh or canned—should be used.

Standard requirements are set at 5,000 International Units of Vitamin A, 600 units of B-1, 1,400 units of C, and 932 Sherman-Bourquin-units of B-2. Since bread and cereals, the richest sources of B-1, must be limited in order to keep down the calories, the reducer's daily menu should be supplemented with one milligram of thiamin yielding 333 units of B-1. By careful selection of the rich food sources it is possible to obtain all the other vitamins in abundance, as shown by

Tea Will Be Held Tomorrow At Osgood Sanders Nursery

By SALLY FORTH.

WHEN FRIENDS of that worthy group, the Sheltering Arms Association, gather for the benefit tea tomorrow at the Osgood Sanders Nursery on Baker street, they will admire the beauty of the newly-decorated institution.

You see, the refurbishing and redecoration of this particular branch of the Sheltering Arms (as well as the Cornelia Day Nursery), was made possible through a gift of the Joseph Whitehead Foundation, and tomorrow when the doors of the Osgood Sanders Nursery are flung open for open house, the affair will inspire as well as re-create interest in the great charity work being carried on by the Sheltering Arms group.

Graham Jackson will be on hand to furnish his ever-tuneful and syncopated music as the guests gather between 4 and 6 o'clock, to be greeted by Mrs. Julian Barrett, president of the Sheltering Arms; Mrs. Bradley Shepherd, chairman of the Osgood Sanders group; Mrs. William McClain, chairman of the Cornelia Day group; Mrs. William Grant, and Mrs. Otis Barge, chairman for the tea, and other officers of the association.

The entire building has been "made over," so to speak, and guests will revel in the artistic and appropriate decorative motif prevailing throughout the first and second floor rooms. Pastel green forms the color scheme for the downstairs walls, these offering effective contrast to the gay flowered chintz draperies. The green blends well with the pastel blue used in the spacious dining room, where chintz draperies in blending colors frame the windows. The upstairs nursery is in pastel blue, and dainty white curtains featuring a flowered print hang at the windows.

Guests attending the benefit tea tomorrow, will be interested in the dental clinic, located at the nursery and especially the doll house where dental implements are kept. This procedure serves to ward off the childish fears of "the dentist's tools."

The work of the Sheltering Arms is never ending, and at Osgood Sanders an average of 100 children between three months and 12 years of age are cared for daily. Regular kindergarten work is conducted by a teacher and now even a station wagon has been added to the "staff."

MARGARET HARMON and Caroline McCleskey will graduate from Hollins College, in Roanoke, Va., tomorrow. And thereby hangs a story, for the popular sub-debs have been classmates since they first entered school. They graduated from E. Rivers in the same class, and four years later were awarded their diplomas from North Fulton High school. Once again they were classmates, when they chose Hollins as their college alma mater—and next week they will graduate in the traditional caps and gowns.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harmon and Mr. and Mrs. Dugas McCleskey left Saturday by motor for Roanoke to attend the exercises, after which Margaret will attend the finals at Washington and Lee University. The trip to Lexington, however, will not end her gadding about, for no sooner will the festivities end at W. & L. when she will go to V. M. I. to be a visiting belle at the finals to be held there on the 8th and 9th of June. Herbert Oliver Jr., you know, is an Atlanta member of the graduating class at the Virginia college.

Margaret and Caroline's social careers will run parallel once again next fall when they make their formal bows to society as members of the 1941-42 Debutante Club.

MISS ANNELLE HAGAN.

Miss Annelle Hagan To Wed Roy E. Goen Next Saturday

The announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hagan, of Morrow, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Annelle Hagan, to Roy E. Goen, is of sincere and cordial interest to a host of friends. The marriage of the popular young couple will be solemnized Saturday, June 7, at an al fresco ceremony in the garden at the home of Mrs. Davis Whitman, sister of bride-elect, at 81 28th street.

Miss Hagan received her early education in the Atlanta schools, and later attended Georgia State College for Women, Milledgeville, Ga. She is a member of Pi chapter, Tau Beta Phi sorority, of which she holds the office of secretary.

Mr. Goen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Goen Sr., of East Point. He was graduated from Russell High school, and attended Georgia Tech Evening School. He is now president of Georgia Beta chapter, Phi Delta Kappa fraternity. Mr. Goen is associated with the Atlanta office of Aetna Casualty and Surety Company.

Mrs. Colquitt, Mr. Webster Marry at Quiet Ceremony

An announcement of first magnitude in exclusive social circles throughout the south is that made today of the marriage of Mrs. Walter T. Colquitt to J. Prince Webster, the nuptials having been quietly solemnized yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride on Habersham road.

Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of the First Methodist church, read the marriage service at 5 o'clock, in the presence of only the immediate families of the couple.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Webster left for a month's wedding trip to California, after which they will make their home at 2635 Habersham road.

Mrs. Webster is the widow of Walter T. Colquitt, prominent figure in social and legal circles of the south. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Julia Dunning, daughter of Mrs. E. M. Dunning, of Atlanta and Albany.

A famous beauty, Mrs. Webster not only is one of the city's most popular matrons, but she is an admired and sought-after figure wherever she visits.

Mrs. Webster's only daughter is Mrs. Russell Bridges Jr., the former Miss Julia Colquitt. Walter T. Colquitt Jr., of Miami Beach and Atlanta, is her only son.

Mr. Webster is a member of families who have played an important part in the development of the cultural and financial life of the south. He is one of Atlanta's most prominent lawyers and is a leading factor in legal, social and civic circles of the city.

Mr. Mrs. Catts Give Garden Party

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Catts celebrated their first wedding anniversary yesterday afternoon at a tea and garden party at their home on Westminster drive. Mrs. Catts is the former Miss Frances Austin.

The sentimental theme was effectively carried out by the popular hostess' bridesmaids of last year who donned for the occasion the bouffant geranium pink mouseline dresses worn by them in the wedding, and who served punch to guests. They were Miss Marjorie Carmichael and Mrs. Marion Rivers. Also serving were Mrs. Charles Hunt, Misses Julian Boykin, and Dorothy Dent, who assisted at Mr. and Mrs. Catts wedding reception.

The attractive hostess wore pink embroidered organdy, and her mother, Mrs. James Austin, was attired in black and white organdy.

The tea table in the dining room was overlaid with an imported lace cloth and centered with white flowers. Punch bowls placed at intervals on the lawn were embedded in flame-colored blossoms.

Miss Taylor Becomes Bride Of Mr. Nixon in LaGrange

LAGRANGE, Ga., June 1.—Miss Sara Taylor became the bride of Charles Ware Nixon, of LaGrange and Savannah, at a quiet home ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Robert Taylor, this afternoon, at 5:30 o'clock, only the immediate families of the young couple assembling for the rites. Dr. Willis E. Howard, pastor of the First Baptist church, read the marriage vows before an altar in the living room. Southern samlax formed a background for tall standards of white gladioli, flanked by cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers.

A musical program was given by Miss Virginia Dean, of West Point, pianist, and Miss Jean Taylor, sister of the bride, vocalist. O. F. Nixon Jr., of LaGrange, was his brother's best man.

The bride entered with her father, Elton Robert Taylor Sr., by whom she was given in marriage. Her petite blond beauty was emphasized by her wedding gown of white net over white satin, fashioned with a jacket featuring long, mutton sleeves, finished with tiny satin-covered buttons. The full skirt was gathered to a wide band of satin at the waist and was cut to form a train. She wore a finger-tip veil of illusion tulle, caught to her hair with a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms. Her only ornaments were a brooch belonging to the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. O. F. Nixon Sr., and she carried a white satin prayer book covered with gardenias and showered with valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor entertained immediately following the ceremony at an informal reception honoring the young couple, with the members of the two families as guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Nixon left for a wedding trip, after which they will go for residence to Savannah, where the former is connected with the credit division of Sears, Roebuck & Company.

The bride chose for traveling a suit of powder blue linen, worn with a blouse of organdy in white, and white accessories. Her hat was of blue linen, and a cluster of gardenias completed her costume.

MISS SARA ROBERTS, OF MONROE.

Miss Sara Roberts, Monroe, Will Marry Mr. Musser

MONROE, Ga., June 1.—Of cordial interest is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Roberts, of Monroe, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sara Roberts, to Clarence Dods Musser, of Kansas City, Mo. The marriage of this popular couple will take place at an early date.

Miss Roberts has many friends in Atlanta, where she has resided for the past two years. She attended the University of Georgia at Athens, where she was a member of the Phi Mu Sorority, and later took post-graduate work at Ohio State University.

She is a member of the Monroe Junior Service League, and a popular member of the younger contingent there. She is a sister of James McMullan Roberts, also of Monroe.

Mr. Musser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Musser, of Oklahoma City, Okla. He attended the University of Oklahoma at Norman, where he received his A. B. and LL. B. degrees. He is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity.

His sister is Mrs. R. L. Downing, of Oklahoma City, and his brothers are Sidney A. Musser, of Oklahoma City, and Ray Musser, of Marshall, Tex. He is associated in business with the National Labor Relations Board in Kansas City, where he and his bride will reside.

Child Welfare Group To Present Film.

The Child Welfare Association will sponsor another film premiere at the annual open meeting this evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Atlanta Biltmore ballroom.

"The Children Next Door," based on a scenario prepared by Mitchell Hodges, financial and publicity secretary of the New Jersey Children's Society, dramatizes a family who through trouble and desertion must turn to a children's agency for placement of their children.

An "Information Please" skit, planned by Harold T. Patterson and Mrs. Walter Dupre, will also be a feature of the meeting. The program is designed to inform the public about the work of the association, Mrs. Frank Neely, president of the association, reveals.

Graduation Planned.

Mrs. Clara B. Cassidy, national director of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle and state manager for Georgia, will preside at the graduation of Misses June Yarian and Margaret West into the adult branch of the society, Monday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Masonic hall in East Point.

Distinguished guests will include Mrs. Willie Belle O'Keefe, state representative to the national convention, other state officers and parents of the juniors. Mrs. Mary Barksdale will serve as pianist. Following the graduation a ritualistic meeting will be conducted by the juniors, with the president, Betty Whaley, presiding.

Pupils playing will include Patsy Seckinger, Jean Fowler, Ann Crain, Jane Richardson, Beverly Eubanks, Betty Ann Altman, Betty Ann Tarrant, Shirley Johnson, Mary Ann Fogue, Carolyn Pogue, Joyce Eubanks, Joanne Bryant, Mary Jane Lewis, Tommy Lowry, John Hall, Jesse Hall Jr., Walter Foster, John Moore.

Miss Babb Weds At Chapel Rites

Miss Wilhelmina Babb became the bride of William Harvey Cook Jr. at a ceremony performed yesterday at 12:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Central Congregational church. Rev. Philip M. Widenhouse officiated at the ring ceremony, with Mrs. Widenhouse as organist.

White tapers and white calla lilies banked the altar and formed a lovely setting for the impressive ceremony, at which only the immediate families of the popular couple were present.

The lovely bride chose a tailored model of water green crepe, made with a matching elbow-length accordeon-pleated cape, and her hat was yellow felt trimmed with shoulder-length veil and dotted with yellow felt discs. Her accessories were of blended pastel shades, and her flowers were bronze orchids. For sentiment she wore an old-fashioned gold pin, a gift of her paternal grandmother.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Cook left for a wedding trip to Florida, and will reside in Atlanta upon their return.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Decima Shingler Babb, of Atlanta, and the late Rupert Maurice Babb. On her maternal side she is descended from the Sturgis family, of Charleston, S. C., and the Shingler family, of Holly Hill, S. C. On her paternal side she is descended from the Babb family, of Virginia, and the Clements family, originally of North Carolina. Her only sister is Mrs. Robert L. Neel, of this city.

Mr. Cook is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cook Sr., of Atlanta. His mother is the former Myrtis Livey, daughter of the late F. J. Livey, of Gwinnett county, and the former Mrs. Emma Margaret Broadnax Livey, of Virginia. On his paternal side he is descended from the Cook family, of Jasper county, and the Whitneys, also of Georgia. Mrs. O. T. Hennessee Jr. and Mrs. Mose S. Hayes, of Atlanta, are sisters of the groom, and Holland Ware Cook is his only brother.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. E. E. Babb, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Maude Y. Shingler, aunt of the bride, both of Donaldsonville, Georgia.

Harkness-Browne Bridal Parties.

Miss Jean Harkness, whose marriage to Dr. Walker Browne will be a brilliant event of Thursday, was hostess on Saturday at a luncheon at the Paradise Room held for her bridal attendants. That evening Dr. Browne feted his attendants at a stag dinner at his home on Adair avenue.

Yesterday Mrs. F. D. Terry and Miss Macie Terry complimented Miss Harkness and Dr. Browne at a dinner party at their home. The affair assembled members of the bride's couple's families.

The final party planned in compliment to Miss Harkness and Dr. Browne preceding their marriage is the buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Browne and their daughter, Miss Wilhelmina Browne, will entertain on Wednesday evening at their home on Adair avenue. The affair will be held after the wedding rehearsal.

Wesleyan Alumnae Plans Luncheon.

On Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock at the Paradise room of the Henry Grady hotel, Group 3 of the Atlanta Wesleyan Alumnae Club will celebrate a luncheon.

Mrs. J. E. Hays, head of the history and archives department of Georgia, will be honor guest and Mrs. J. Clyde Withers, the new chairman of Group 3, will be the official hostess.

The group has had, perhaps, the most successful year of its history under the leadership of Mrs. Carroll Griffin, for the very large per cent of its membership has actively participated in the activities of the group this year.

Contra Square Set Announces Dances.

The Atlanta Contra Square Set announces a series of swing-your-partner June nights. These will occur successive Mondays at 8 o'clock with the exception of Monday, June 9, at the Morning-side Community Hut, 1053 Rock Springs road. Miss Rosalind F. Ricketts is the caller for the group. Admission is by invitation. Any one with a sincere interest in the "round," "square," and "contra" sets of early American history may make application by calling Vernon 0329 or Raymond 1617.

good morning,

There's always a flutter of excitement when we're trousseauing a bride. It's proudly, "She My Bride" all over the store, from the moment you consult us until we put the finishing touches to your veil, at home or at church.

NAZI STAR TAKES SKY IN PERU

U. S. Business Man Reports 'Good Neighbor' Policy Dimmed

(This report on Nazi influence in Peru was written by a New York business man long connected with the shipping industry, who has traveled widely in South America and lectured on his observations. He is a son of Douglas Robinson and Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.)

By MONROE D. ROBINSON.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
LIMA, Peru, May 25.—The Nazi star is definitely in the ascendant in Peru, dimming day by day America's "good neighbor" policy, the question of hemisphere defense. This is a fact, not fiction, an unpleasant thing to face, especially here, as you have it with you from dawn till dark. There is a Fifth Column in Peru. It is a subject of common gossip. The man in the government will tell you so, the man in the street confirms that opinion. It is even broadly hinted that men in high political circles in Peru have definite leanings toward the Germans.

These words are not spoken with bated breath, they are merely statements of fact. Seeing is believing, and here in my hotel, you can see the Fifth Column in person, not once a day, but fresh every hour. It is the same old story of the bullet-head, square, powerful, shaven, repelling, or, the contrast of youth, vigorous, energetic, a slave to the ideal of force. You meet them in the elevator, in the lobby. You get to know them by sight, one and all. You sit opposite them at tea-time, in the dining-room.

How Do They Operate.
How do they operate? My conversation with a prominent Peruvian businessman at the Club Nacional will tell one side of the story: "Mr. Robinson, I am sympathetic to England, to the United States, but the German propaganda machine is working every day and night. Each morning at 8 o'clock a news broadcast from Berlin. It opens with a military march played by a splendid band; then the news in fluent Spanish, excellent, appealing, telling everything favorable to Berlin. Broadcast through the day at half-hour intervals.

"You must remember that education in this country is not of the highest and that many people are influenced by what they hear because they cannot read. They are bound to react to this form of propaganda. And here are the efforts of the United States going to be to answer this situation?

"I am a Peruvian, my family has been in this country for generations, yet many times a week I receive through the mails a pamphlet or letter in Spanish from the German legation telling the Nazi side of the case. After the first one or two I recognized these pamphlets and now I throw them in the waste paper basket. I do not believe that all others as I do. Frankly, I feel they have a tremendous influence.

Business Fear Evident.
"There are some among my acquaintances that have leanings toward Germany through fear, business fear. They hesitate to be otherwise. The Banco Italiano is one of the most powerful financial institutions in Peru. They have had able managers. They have been generous and free with their loans to industries, to businessmen, farms. At the same time, they have always used good judgment. Much of the business in this country passes through their hands.

"Take the case of the dinner given to Lord Willingdon and the English finance commission which passed through Lima some months back. There were many Peruvians who wished to add their names to the list of sponsors for that dinner, but they did not dare. They had business deals, loans with the Banco Italiano. They could not afford to be on the black list of the bank. The German propaganda machine touches every angle of our national life. It is serious for Peru. It is equally serious for the United States."

What is the United States going to do about it? It is something that we Americans, here in Lima, ask ourselves daily with a heavy heart. The odds are terrific, but they are growing greater hour by hour. Take the case of the export of cotton. Today, the Japanese are buying a great quantity of Peru's cotton crop. One can see the Japanese boats loading cotton at the port of Callao. Two years ago there were riots against the Japanese by the Peruvian people. Buildings were destroyed. Conditions were serious.

Japanese Feeling Changed.
"Yet," as one of my Peruvian friends frankly put it, "today the feeling has changed. You see, the Japanese are buying what we have to sell. The United States cannot buy much from us. England has had to cut down her purchasing greatly. Germany is blocked. It is only natural that our feelings toward Japan have changed."

Any conversation with a Peruvian government official, businessman, newspaperman, professional or intellectual may start out one way, will inevitably end up in another. The United States "good neighbor" policy, whether it is transitory or permanent, whether it is imperialistic or genuine, carries an importance to the Peruvian mind that cannot be measured. It also carries a large measure of doubt. A newspaperman summed it up in a nutshell: "The actions of the United States must speak louder than their words. Their actions of today must be different from their actions of yesterday, truly to convince the people of Peru that the policy of the good neighbor is a genuine article."

The people of Peru deeply resent the American writer who is here today, gone tomorrow, and has written the history of this country the following day. The impossibility of feeling the Peruvian national pulse in such a short time, with the inevitable errors in attempting to do so, has provoked an irritation in this country that few in the United States realize. The Peruvians dislike it. They do not hesitate to tell you so. It has created a serious situation in relation to the "good neighbor" policy of the United States government.

U. S. Defense Contract Agency Announces Materials Sought

In its effort to aid southern business firms in securing national defense contracts, the district office of the new Defense Contract Service secures data information on materials and supplies sought by various procurement offices of the United States military service.

Following is a list of some of the items on which bids now are being asked:

1. Valve seat grinder, wet type; grinding wheels and collets.
2. Motor-driven hack saw.
3. Portable pneumatic drills and riveters.
4. Steel tie rods and couplers.
5. Two steel tanks, 25,000-gallon capacity.
6. Kitchen utensils and corrosion-resisting steelware.
7. Enamel finished kettles, galvanized water containers (five-gallons).
8. Repair parts for folding canvas cots.
9. Twenty thousand feet rough structural timber (pine).
10. Four hundred thousand feet air or kiln-dried crating lumber.
11. Miscellaneous packing supplies, including stencil ink, glue, tape, etc.
12. Manila rope, cotton rope and cotton thread.
13. General office supplies, including wire baskets, perforators, paper weights, desk pads, pencils, erasers, paper, cards, etc.
14. Forty thousand cardboard tubes; 54,000 fiber boxes.
15. Miscellaneous supplies, brushes, handles, polish sponges, soap.
16. Fifty thousand pounds flake naphthalene.
17. Paint, turpentine and linseed oil.
18. Calcium hypochlorite; trisodium phosphate; rust preventive compound.

Alcohol as Motor Fuel.

Automobiles using alcohol produced in a bakery are running smoothly in Stockholm, Sweden. As hard bread must remain in the oven until practically all the moisture has evaporated much more alcohol can be produced than when soft bread is baked, according to the bakers who conceived the idea. Automobiles are said to operate perfectly on this fuel, the results being exactly the same as when gasoline is used.

KNOW YOUR NAVY

AP Feature Service

A NAVY enlisted man may choose any one of the service's many branches, each with its own insignia. After a man has become a first class seaman, he might be in the carpenter's branch. He then could progress to be carpenter's mate, chief carpenter's mate, carpenter and finally chief carpenter.

Insignia of the various branches include:

- BOATSWAIN'S MATE
- TORPEDOMAN
- GUNNER'S MATE
- QUARTERMASTER
- SIGNALMAN
- FIRE CONTROLMAN
- RADIOMAN
- SHIPFITTER
- YEOMAN
- SHIP'S COOK

SERVICE STRIPES

Service stripes are worn on left sleeve. Each strip represents four years of naval service. Men who have completed 12 years continuous service with good conduct wear gold service stripes and gold chevrons on rating badges.

Today's Radio

Francie White To Sing Again On Phone Hour

Pretty Concert Star To Be Heard With James Melton, Orchestra.

After a two-week absence from the Telephone Hour program, Francie White will return tonight to be heard at 7 o'clock over WSB with James Melton and Donald Voorhees' 57-piece symphony orchestra and chorus. The program's star soprano left to take the leading role in "Naughty Marietta" in Los Angeles and San Francisco. During her absence two stars of the Metropolitan Opera were heard on the Telephone Hour, Helen Jepson and Winifred Heidt. This was the first time that guest artists had appeared on that program.

Celebrating her return, Miss White will sing one of her favorite arias, "The Laughing Song," from the comic opera "Manon Lescaut," by Gounod (Orchestra).

Other songs include "The Star of Bethlehem," by Schubert (James Melton), "You Dearest One of All," from "Waltz Dream," by Strauss (James Melton and Francie White).

Three top-ranking Hollywood stars, George Raft, Ida Lupino and Brian Donlevy, are co-starring on "Radio Theater" tonight in "They Drive by Night," adapted for radio from the motion picture of the same name. (WGST at 8 o'clock.)

In selecting "They Drive by Night," Cecil B. DeMille, producer and director of this Columbia network blue-ribbon dramatic program, brings to the radio audience an exciting story. It is about the Sambrini brothers, members of the hardy band of men who pilot the endless nightly procession of automobile trucks as they rumble across country carrying the nation's goods to market.

George Raft will be cast as Joe Sambrini, the same role he had in the motion picture version. Brian Donlevy will play the part of his brother, Paul, and Miss Lupino plays Cassie, pretty little waitress at one of the rolling caravan's regular refueling stops for men and machines.

Other songs include "The Star of Bethlehem," by Schubert (James Melton), "You Dearest One of All," from "Waltz Dream," by Strauss (James Melton and Francie White).

Letter Forger Held.

Shanghai, China, police have arrested a young Chinese who makes a profession of forging letters to obtain loans. Yang Tzehung, brother of a former minister of the Navy in China, recently received a letter which he thought came from a relative. The error cost him $600. Later the swindler tried to extort $500,000 in Chinese money from him, but was traced and captured by the French police.

Power Given To Allot Wheat Feed and Sales

Agriculture Department To Penalize Those Not Complying.

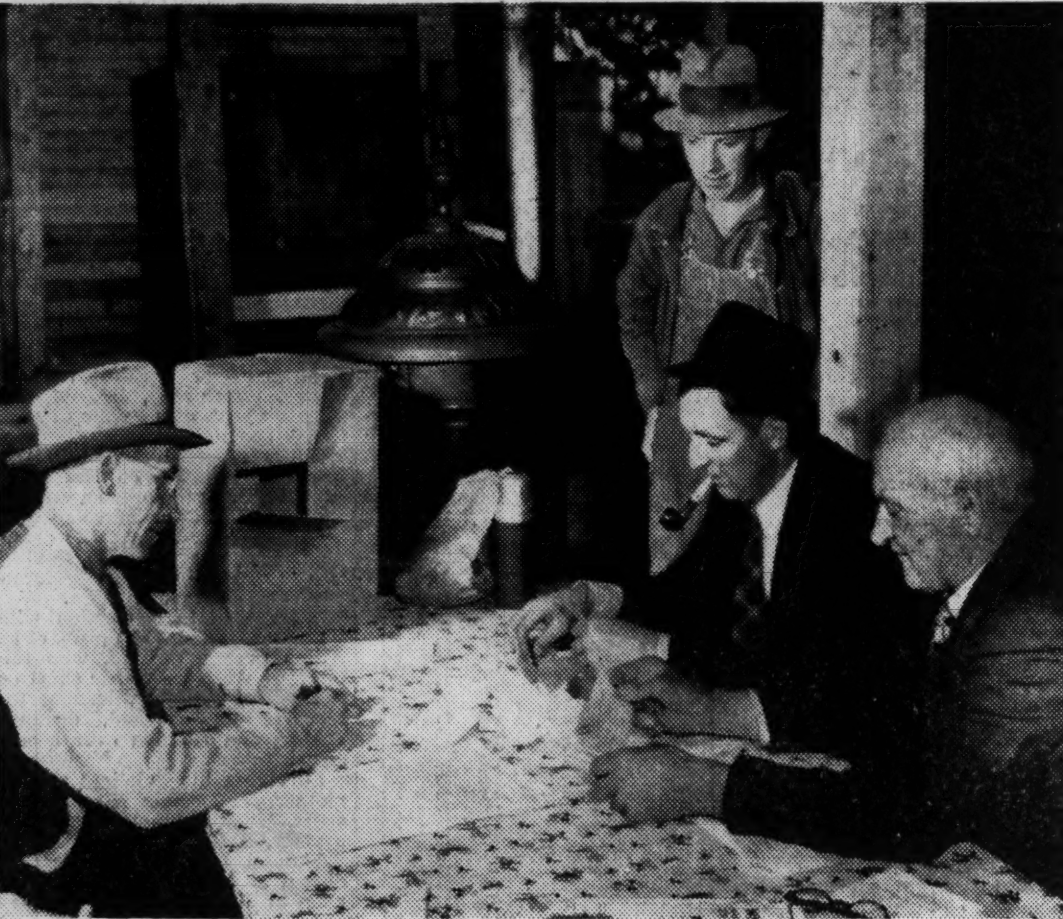

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department received authority today to tell farmers how much wheat they can sell or feed this year and to collect a penalty of 48 cents a bushel from those who do not comply.

Nearly complete returns in yesterday's referendum from the 37 principal wheat-producing states gave 392,611 votes for and 95,354 against the marketing control proposal. This was a favorable majority of 80.3 per cent. Georgia voted 112 for to 65 against.

As a consequence, growers were assured of a government crop loan for wheat at 85 per cent of parity, or about 97 cents a bushel, compared with last year's loan rate of 56 per cent of parity, or about 72 cents. Legislation recently approved authorized the higher loan in the event quotas were approved.

Commenting on the results of Saturday's poll, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said wheat growers had met "the challenge of the present (wheat surplus) emergency."

"By their own decision, they have shouldered the responsibility for doing their part to keep the nation strong. Hemmed in by economic and war blockade, they face a surplus that, uncontrolled, could undermine an important economic structure."

COUNT WHEAT VOTES—Local committeemen in Fayette, N. Y., count ballots cast Saturday by farmers in the referendum on the Department of Agriculture proposal for wheat marketing quotas. The plan was put before growers in 37 wheat producing states. It will control wheat sales and feed.

House Leader Urges Flying Tanks for U.S.

Engel, of Military Group, Reveals Experiments by Army.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—Authoritative congressional sources disclosed today the Army is experimenting with a tank-carrying transport similar to those which Germany is reported to have used in the invasion of Crete.

Such craft carry a very light armored tank in sections which can be readily assembled on the plane lands. The tanks weigh only between five and seven tons—roughly half the size of the regular so-called "light tank" used by the armored force.

Representative Engel, Republican, Michigan, a member of the house military appropriations subcommittee, said tank-carrying planes might prove invaluable for hemisphere defense.

"Germany has demonstrated in Crete just how effective air-borne tanks can be," Engel said. "We should not lose sight of the possibility that the Nazis might repeat their Crete performance in Greenland or South America and land forces equipped with such tanks and be able to fortify themselves before we could reach the scene with our heavier equipment."

"If, however, we had some of the same type of equipment which we could land within 48 hours, they would not have such an advantage."

French Fire at British Plane Over Damascus

VICHY, Unoccupied France, June 1.—(AP)—Dispatches from Beirut said French anti-aircraft defenses fired today on a British plane which flew over Damascus, capital of Syria.

It was learned that four British planes again bombed the airfield at Neirab, near Aleppo, yesterday.

In North Africa, General Maxime Weygand, French commander-in-chief, said anti-aircraft defenses would be tightened following the series of British bombings of the port at Sfax in Tunisia.

(In London it was learned that the French ambassador in Madrid had presented to British Ambassador Sir Samuel Hoare a note protesting against the bombing last week of the French merchant ship Rabelais at Sfax and injury to eight French subjects.)

Two Senators Urge U. S. To Seek Peace

Sooner War Ends, Better the Terms, Johnson Says.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—Great Britain's Crete led two Democratic senators today to renew proposals that the United States take the lead in attempting to negotiate a peace in Europe.

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, told reporters that he thought the sooner that peace was established the better the terms on which Great Britain and Germany could agree.

Agreeing with Johnson in this observation, Senator Clark, Democrat, Idaho, said it was his belief that the United States, "instead of talking war, ought to be talking peace."

On the other hand, Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, acting senate majority leader, took the view that the fall of Crete should only spur the United States to redoubled efforts to supply Britain with all types of planes in greater quantities. The British attributed Germany's success in Crete to control of the air.

Johnson said he intended to re-introduce a resolution he has introduced which would put Congress on record as requesting the President to take the leadership in urging neutral nations to unite in seeking to negotiate a peace.

Declaring that he would support this resolution "wholeheartedly," Clark said he believed that such a peace would give the United States an opportunity to build up its defenses against attack that now was denied because of the large amount of military equipment which was being furnished to Great Britain.

New U. S. Ship Leaves Ways Next Saturday

35,000-Ton South Dakota Well Ahead of Schedule.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 1.—(UP)—The 35,000-ton battleship, U. S. S. South Dakota, third super-dreadnaught to be built since the start of the nation's two-ocean navy program, will be launched next Saturday, four months ahead of schedule, it was announced Saturday.

The $70,000,000 vessel will be sponsored by Mrs. Harlan J. Bushfield, wife of the Governor of South Dakota, in ceremonies at the New York Shipbuilding Corporation.

Only two weeks ago, the U. S. S. Washington, a sister ship of the South Dakota, was commissioned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, directly across the Delaware river.

A third battleship, the U. S. S. North Carolina, was turned over to the Navy recently at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The South Dakota will be the 18th battleship for the United States fleet.

The keel of the ship was laid on July 5, 1939, and although completion was scheduled to take four years, the vessel probably will be commissioned within a year.

As soon as the South Dakota leaves the ways, the keel of another ship, which yard officials expect to complete nine months ahead of contract schedule, will be laid.

Minister Prays For U. S. War Aid

BROOKWOOD, Surrey, England, June 1.—(AP)—The Rev. Marcus A. Spencer, American pastor of St. John's Presbyterian church in London, prayed today for United States armed aid to Britain.

The pastor, formerly of Washington, and Warren, O., spoke at American Memorial Day services at a military cemetery at which Mrs. Winston Churchill laid a wreath in tribute to American dead in the first World War. Mrs. John G. Winant, wife of the United States ambassador, was in the audience of several hundred Britons and Americans.

"We pray that, as America has been led by these to aid with out stint from afar, she may now hold back no longer," said the Rev. Spencer.

"May she take that further step of complete brotherhood of arms, risk and sacrifice. So may we as a nation pledge the last full measure of devotion so that the cause of freedom shall not perish from the earth."

Bishop Urges Embracing of Unseen Power

'Christ Must Win the Peace,' He Declares.

"Our security is not in denying the reality of the unseen power but in embracing it," Bishop William Jacob Wells, of the A. M. E. Zion church, said yesterday in a baccalaureate sermon for graduates of Atlanta University, Morehouse College, Spelman College and the Atlanta University School of Social Work.

"The war and who shall win with all the appalling incidents occupies the horizon today," he asserted, "but it makes little difference who wins our wars unless Christ wins the peace. If the last war had resulted in the peace of the Christ-like God, the present war threatening to engulf us all in the Hell it has, would not be."

Degrees will be awarded to 69 candidates of Atlanta University during commencement exercises at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Speaker will be President Raymond Asa Kent, of the University of Louisville.

Thief Novice Skater.

In East St. Louis, Ill., a prowler stole a pair of roller skates with shoes attached from Art Lamely's automobile. Police deduced that the thief was a novice skater, since he also took a pint of rubbing alcohol.

San Pedro Oil Docks Guarded by Firemen

SAN PEDRO, Calif., June 1.—(AP)—Water from scores of fire hoses played constantly over docks of oil companies at Los Angeles harbor today, on advice of the Coast Guard.

Guard officials would not comment, except to confirm that such a recommendation had been made. Oil companies with millions of dollars invested in plants and storage facilities, control most of the 36 miles of waterfront.

Chaz Chase Is Answer to Your Ailment

Opens as Feature of Fast Little Floor Show.

By LEE ROGERS.

Chaz Chase opened Saturday night as the featured attraction in a fast little floor show at the Henry Grady's Paradise Room where Lou Clancy's rhythm boys are also giving out with "Sham-rock Music."

Chase is the answer to what's ailing you—the heat, the drouth, the war jitters, a jilting from the best girl.

He's an expert at pantomime and he has no purpose in life other than to make his audience laugh. And his burlesque of Minsky's strip-tease queens and of Sally Rand's fan dances certainly chases the glum away.

First Time.

Chase is playing the Atlanta night spot for the first time, though he was a hit at the Roxy theater a little more than a year ago. He's been going through his pantomime routine, always to the increasing appreciation of the audience the more they see the act, for more than 20 years. He's visited every important capital of the world. He's been featured in the Ziegfeld Follies and the Earl Carroll Vanities. But his favorite spot is the Bowery, where everything goes.

It matters not the language nor the class of his audience. His act is always the same. The little silly grin is there as he munches a lighted cigar, smokes cigarettes from two ends, eats flowers and pape, only to top the meal off by swallowing some lighted matches to "burn out the ulcers."

Chase Is Artist.

Chase is an artist with pantomime and burlesque. He'll be at the Paradise Room through Friday with two shows each night and a luncheon show. Confidentially, he's better on the midnight show than any—and that goes for his supporting acts, the Six Shades of Rhythm, shapely little dancing girls who get rid of excess clothing for the late show; Margie Campbell, an acrobatic dancer with a figure to make the customers forget food and drinks; Margie Mann, Gypsy dancer; and Alma and Rowland.

Clancy's music is soft and smooth. Some of you may remember him. Manager Juddie Johnson, of the Paradise Room, brought Lou to Atlanta some years ago when he was running the Palais Peachtree to make the music for a dance marathon.

With him is an attractive girl singer, Dee Lohm, who has a "let's-all-get-acquainted" personality, and a voice good for trick specialty songs. We still wish she wore a dainty Colleen's dress rather than that shirt, white tailored coat and little green bow tie.

PLENTY OF CLAMOR—Lucious Lily Damita has always been right up front with the glamor girls, and she'll also probably have plenty of clamor around the house now for a while. She and Star-hubby Errol Flynn are parents of a son, 7 pounds 2 1/2 ounces. The above photo was snapped during the former actress' last visit to Atlanta.

Two Persons Die, Six Hurt In Auto Crash

Bride of Two Months Is Victim of Collision at Hartwell.

HARTWELL, Ga., June.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and six others injured, one critically, in an automobile collision near here early today.

Sheriff Britt Brown, of Hart County, listed the dead as Ernest Edwards, 13, and Mrs. Claude Frank Craft, 19, a bride of two months. They were riding with five others in the car of Mrs. Craft's husband, the sheriff said, when the machine collided with one driven by a youth who gave his name as Mack Alfred Carter, 17. All reside near Hartwell.

Sheriff said Billy Gaines, 16, a passenger in the Craft car, was in critical condition at an Elberton hospital with a fractured skull and broken shoulder. Others were released from the hospital after treatment of cuts.
